Rioters Battle Marshals

Reporter Sees Students Become Mob

BY RAYMOND R. COFFEY
Chicago Daily News Service

OXFORD, Miss. — I watched a crowd of heckling but good-humored young Americans turn into a murderous mob that heaved bricks at U. S. marshals with no more thought than a small boy breaking windows in a greenhouse.

To spend a long night ducking and running from exploding tear gas shells and hoping you don't get a fatal bullet in the back as one reporter did is no picnic.

Posed as Student
But it is considerably more frightening to watch a blood-thirsty mob grow from a group of young people well off enough and intelligent enough to attend their state's finest university. I had to disguise myself as a student to get on to the campus in the first place.

Members of the mob booked up a hose and began squirting the marshals. The lawmen punctured the hose, and water shot upwards, drenching all about.

Next the rioters somehow got their hands on a bulldozer and rammed it against a tree in a wild effort to mow down the marshals.

They backed off, started again towards the marshals' ranks. A barrage of tear gas forced them to abandon the bulldozer, and the marshals swept forward, taking over the machine and arresting at least six persons. At dawn it was still not clear how many were arrested. Meanwhile, gunfire rattled from trees where members of the mob were hidden. It was only after several volleys were fired and bricks and broken bottles were tossed, that the federal lawmen answered the mob with guns rather than tear gas.

Dead Identified
The two dead were Paul Guihard, a correspondent for the London Sketch and Agence France Presse, the French news agency, and Ray Gunter, 23, of Abbeville, Miss., a juke box service man.

Guihard was found sprawled dead next to a girls' dormitory, an ugly wound in his back. A colleague said the wound apparently came from a 22 caliber gun.

Gunter was shot in the forehead. Officials did not know who fired the shots.

At least three persons were critically wounded.

One was a U. S. marshal, reported shot in the throat with shotgun pellets.

After the marshal was wounded, a student leader came out of a dormitory, climbed up on the base of the flagpole at the Lyceum building and pleaded with the rioters to stop.

Mob Defies Leader
"Wait till the world hears we've killed a man," he pleaded, near tears.

Rioters hooted him down. "Go home, go home," he pleaded. "To hell with you," the mob howled back.

"Let's charge again," shouted one rioter.

Another of the critically injured

Federalized Forces Fire Over Heads of Mob During Battle in Integration Fight

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Federalized Mississippi troops fired over the heads of an angry mob in the streets of Oxford today as a pitched battle broke out over integration of the University of Mississippi.

Troops of the 108th Armored Cavalry, headquartered at nearby Tupelo, advanced with drawn bayonets and rifles at the ready as the rioters began firing.

The encounter was about a half block off the town square which had been sealed off earlier.

The soldiers bolted from their trucks and on orders shouted by their officers sprinted toward the firing. The battle garbed troops pushed the crowd steadily down the street away from the square, firing in the air. No one was injured.

Dozens of rioters, mostly young boys with shirtings out, were being rounded up. At least 30 and possibly more were herded into the federal courthouse on the square.

Prisoners were forced to place their hands over their heads and were marched at bayonet point to the courthouse.

The latest rioting came after former Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker had appeared in the square — clad in a dark blue suit and wearing a 10-gallon hat.

He stayed in the square briefly, spoke quietly to some of those in the crowd nearest the troops, and then backed off as military eyes watched him closely.

Earlier Clash

The same youths, along with 100 others, earlier had been cleared from the square after cursing, screaming, and throwing rocks and bottles at passing military vehicles.

They were driven from the square by MP's armed with tear gas, and bayonets fixed to rifles. Remnants of the crowd gathered about a half block away shortly before the firing broke out.

Military jeeps raced around the littered square, rushing to trouble spots. Drizzling rain, alternated with sunshine, fell on the town but failed to cool the wrath of the mob.

Medics set up a first aid station beside the town's ancient confederate war memorial and troops, who began clearing the streets, placed a pile of debris near the gray statue.

Life in the usually, sleepy southern town was at a standstill. Almost all businesses failed to open this morning and the streets were practically deserted except for rioters, soldiers and newsmen.

Kennedy Says Troops Callup Was Necessary

President Gets Word On Developments At Mississippi U

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy declares it was his inescapable duty to call out troops when Mississippi defied court orders to enroll a Negro at the state university.

Grim, yet conciliatory at times, the President said Sunday night in a short radio-television address to the nation that he hoped it would be unnecessary to use troops, even though confrontation and persuasion had failed to obtain admission of James H. Meredith.

After his address, Kennedy sat beside the telephone in his office getting up-to-the-minute reports on rioting, gunfire and teargas sweeping across the university campus at Oxford — and the arrival on the scene of federal military reinforcements.

Court Orders Defied
Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and several members of the White House staff kept the vigil with the chief executive.

Courts of law, all the way up to the Supreme Court, Kennedy said in his speech, ordered Meredith's admission into the university. When the orders were defied and those who tried to carry them out

China's Celebration Ignored by Russia

No Important Soviet Officials On Parade Reviewing Stand

BY JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union snubbed Red China's mass-never succeed.

The attack continued today in the keynote speech of Vice Premier-Foreign Minister Chen Yi in Peiping's Red Square. He called for unity in a struggle against "U.S. imperialist policies of aggression and war," an apparent dig at what Peiping considers a soft Soviet policy of peaceful co-existence with the West.

Khrushchev sent the usual telegram of congratulations, but he and other ranking Soviet leaders boycotted a rally in Moscow. On domestic matters Chou En-lai told a Peiping reception last night, "The serious natural disasters for the three consecutive years from 1958 to 1961 and the shortcomings and mistakes in our work have indeed caused us difficulties."

The time of economic recovery was sounded by Chen Yi today, but he added "we are still confronted with many difficulties. It would not be right to fail to see them."

The speech made it clear that China, beset by food shortages, is still in the grip of hard times. The People's Daily, while it did not use the word purge, indicated that the country has been shaken for the past year by a severe struggle "against enemies at home and abroad."

This echoed a communiqué from the Chinese Communist party Central Committee which acknowledged continuing resistance to the regime by "a tiny fraction of the total population."

The sessions were expected to draw about 1,200 delegates.

The Committee on Political Education has prepared a list of candidates for state offices for endorsement at the sessions.

Also prepared for presentation to the delegates was a resolution asking support to any AFL-CIO affiliate raided by the Teamsters Union. Similar resolution have passed in several other AFL-CIO state conventions, according to Edward Peil, Wisconsin director of the Communications Workers of America union.

Kennedy Has Busy Weekend

Integration Crisis Forces President To Cancel Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was the Sabbath, but not a day of rest at the White House. There was no lull before the storm.

The high-voltage hours of Saturday flowed right into Sunday, and the lights in the Army section of the Pentagon blazed past dawn.

The Pentagon's bright windows were just one tipoff that the clash between the state of Mississippi and the federal government over enrolling a Negro into the all-white state university was building toward a climax.

The President canceled at the last moment a weekend trip to Newport, R.I. and remained in the White House, directing what his aides described as "a cool operation."

Three times Saturday he talked by telephone to Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi who had defied court orders and refused to permit Negro James H. Meredith to enroll in the school. Then Kennedy gave orders which kept the Pentagon's lights burning.

Federalize Troops
Coolly, deliberately and with no signs of anger, according to his assistants, the President arranged for absorbing the Mississippi National Guard into federal service and for assembling regular Army troops.

Sunday broke bright and rather chilly. By 10 a.m. Kennedy was attending Mass at St. Stephen's church.

Some Commuters Leave

North Western Road Counts Strike Losses

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago and North Western Railway began gathering information Monday to find out how many of its customers lost the North Western habit during a 30-day strike.

Based on 1961 income during a comparable period, the railroad said it lost an estimated $18 million during the strike which ended Friday.

Now the 10,700-mile line wants to know how much more the hangover will cost. In other words, how many commuters and shippers will take their business elsewhere and for how long?

"No question, we've lost some to other forms of transportation," Ben W. Heineman, North Western chairman, said Sunday.

"Some may want to stick with another railroad or their car pool. We hope, however, that they will all gradually come back."

Full service was restored Monday morning for 35,000 Chicago area commuters who piled into rail cars with "Welcome Home" signs in the vestibules.

The railway's freight salesmen have been on the telephone since the settlement, trying to round up all the old customers.

Full freight service, however, can't be promised immediately. The big problem is rounding up some 60,000 freight cars for 30,000 shippers in 1,000 Midwest cities.

October, the harvest month, is normally the busiest shipping month of the year for the North Western.

For many shippers, there is no question of returning their business to the railroad. These are some shippers of sugar beets, livestock, timber and grain who anxiously awaited the end of the strike or paid high prices to truckers to haul their products.

Kennedy Present as Court Term Opens

Arthur Goldberg Takes Oath Of Associate Justice; Docket Crammed With 1,000 Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy took time out from the crisis at the University of Mississippi today to attend the opening of the new term of the Supreme Court.

Both the President and his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert E. Kennedy, were present as Kennedy's appointee, Arthur J. Goldberg, took the oath as associate justice.

In addition to the President and attorney general, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, and six other cabinet officers, many high government officials were present. Goldberg moved to the court from the cabinet post of secretary of labor.

Constitutional Oath
Goldberg first took the constitutional oath in the justices' private conference room behind the high court bench. Only the other justices were present.

The judges then entered the court with Goldberg taking a seat at the desk of the court clerk. Chief Justice Earl Warren announced the retirement of Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter, paying tribute to him for his long service on the high court. Warren then announced that Goldberg had been named to replace Frankfurter, and Goldberg stepped forward to take the judicial oath.

Following the oath, the President, vice president and McCormack leaned over and shook hands with the new justice.

As Goldberg took his seat at the end of the high court bench, Associated Justice Potter Stewart leaned over, shook hands, and said, "Welcome Mr. Justice."

6½ Minutes
The whole ceremony took only six and one half minutes, with the President leaving almost immediately after it was over.

After the opening ceremonies, Warren turned quickly to routine business. The first item was the admission of 45 attorneys to practice before the Supreme Court. After an 18-minute opening session, the court recessed until next Monday.

Goldberg's wife, son and daughter also were in the marble courtroom when the new justice, wearing the black silk robe of the office, swore to administer justice equally, without respect to persons.

He is Kennedy's second appointment to the Supreme Court. His first, Byron R. White, was sworn in April 16.

Heavy Docket
This session, with a particularly heavy docket and expected to produce some momentous decisions, likely will tell whether their judicial views are liberal, conservative or somewhere in between.

At 54, Goldberg, son of Jewish immigrants, will be the third youngest member of the court. Justice Potter Stewart at 47 and Justice White at 45 are the youngest.

Goldberg joins the high tribunal when it dockets are crammed with more than 1,000 cases, some certain to produce momentous decisions.

The court, for instance, will decide on: The constitutionality of Bible reading and the saying of the Lord's Prayer in public schools.

The final outcome of sit-in racial demonstrations in the South. Fixing of new standards for reapportionment of legislative districts in the states.

Record Number of Traffic Deaths Noted in August
CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic deaths are climbing at a record clip. The National Safety Council reported that Thursday, and cited these figures: Motor vehicle accidents cost the lives of 4,060 Americans in August. That was the highest toll ever compiled for any August.

August was the tenth consecutive month to show an increase or no change when compared with the corresponding month of the previous year.

In the first eight months of this year 25,910 persons were killed—another record. The toll represented an increase of 9 per cent over the corresponding period of 1961.

During the first eight months approximately 950,000 persons suffered injuries that disabled them at least beyond the day of the accident.

While deaths went up 9 per cent travel gained 5 per cent. The death rate for the eighth month was 5.1 per 100 million miles of travel, compared with 4.9 through the corresponding period of last year.

Kuehn Wants Party Backing For Tax Plan

Official Platform Convention Meets Tuesday in Madison

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Republican nominee for governor, Philip G. Kuehn, said Sunday night that he would suggest that his party adopt his tax program at the official platform convention at Madison Tuesday.

Kuehn advocates a general three per cent sales tax with specified credits.

No Mention
Both the Republican and Democratic parties will hold platform conventions at the capitol Tuesday. The conventions will be attended by nominees for the major state offices, the Senate, Assembly and hold over senators. They are set up by law.

Both parties adopted platforms at the regular organization conventions earlier this year. The platform conventions usually follow the pattern set at these earlier conventions, did not adopt a platform which specifically mentioned the sales tax. They went on record for a "tax reform program that is equitable, easy to administer and provides adequate revenue."

The Democratic convention flatly opposed a sales levy in its platform.

The Democratic nominee for governor, John W. Reynolds, also has been opposed to any sales tax now in force. He has not spelled out his specific program of a tax to replace the sales levy but is known to favor an increase in income taxes, and excise taxes on automobiles and alcoholic beverages.

Gov. Gaylord Nelson, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, charged Sunday that his Republican opponent, Sen. Alexander Wiley, "voted to cripple the federal job retraining bill in the Senate last year."

French Newsman's Death on Front Page
PARIS — Observers unanimously feel this morning that President Kennedy will succeed in crushing the Mississippi revolt but regret that this test of strength has been imposed on him.

There is no understanding in France — which has almost no Negro population — of the southern point of view concerning racial segregation and little sympathy for it.

The clashes that caused the death of France-Press correspondent Paul Guillaud were abundantly reported on French radio and television networks and front-paged in morning newspapers here. There was no attempt to minimize their importance or gravity.

Editorial Comments
Typical of French reactions is this comment in the liberal morning Les Echos, which writes editorially:

"In Algeria too there were people who refused to accept equality of rights between men because of their erroneous conception of social hierarchy. They thought they could block the march of history by their fanatical resistance. As in Algeria where (President Charles) de Gaulle won over the right-wing fanatics, the last word will remain with President Kennedy."

Another morning paper, Paris Jour, described President Kennedy as confronted with one of the most tragic dilemmas of his whole political career. He cannot yield to defiance of the federal administration and at the same time he must not antagonize Southern voters just a month before the elections, it said.

No Problem
The French people's general reactions are easily explained. France has almost no color problem.

Weekend Traffic Takes 10 Lives In Wisconsin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 47-year-old Hastings, Minn., man and his 82-year-old mother were among the 10 persons killed in Wisconsin automobile accidents during the weekend. Two other deaths were recorded from mishaps outside the period as the state's highway toll for the year reached 685 compared with 658 on this day one year ago.

Robert Bennett, 47, of Hastings, Minn., and his mother, Mrs. Mary Bennett, 82, of Ellsworth, Wis., were killed in a three-car smash-up Sunday afternoon on Highway 72, eight miles southwest of Menomonie in Dunn County. Bennett's wife and two of their four children, Charlotte, 12, and Loren, 14, were injured.

Officers reported that the accident occurred when a car came out of a driveway and forced another car into the path of the Bennett vehicle.

Weather a Factor for Schirra
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra's chances of making his projected six-orbit flight on Wednesday were listed at 50-50 today because of weather threats.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported at a weather briefing that the main concern was Tropical Storm Daisy, whose 45 - mile - an - hour winds were taking dead aim at the area in the Atlantic where Schirra would land if his flight were terminated after three orbits.

NASA also said a cold front moving toward Florida from the Gulf of Mexico could bring clouds to the Cape Canaveral launching area on Wednesday morning. The launch now is scheduled for between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m. (CST) that day.

A Space Agency spokesman said Project Mercury director Walter Williams was taking a cautious look at the weather. Another weather briefing was scheduled for 4 p.m.

Daisy boiled up 420 miles east of Puerto Rico Sunday packing winds up to 50 miles an hour in the center. Peak winds fell to about 45 miles overnight, but as it did it created stormy seas over a wide area.

High Waves
On its present west Northwest course, and 12 mile per hour speed, Daisy could produce high waves and cloud conditions over the impact area for orbit No. 3 by the scheduled launch day. This area is 175 miles east of Grand Turk Island and 200 miles north of Puerto Rico.

Almost perfect weather is a must in possible landing zones before the launching will be attempted.

Schirra kept in close contact with weather developments from his quarters in Hangar S. AT Cape Canaveral, where he is spending the final days before the flight.

Reaction to Kennedy Address on TV Split Along Sectional Lines

Praise From North and West; Sharp Attacks From the South

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional reaction to President Kennedy's address to the nation on the University of Mississippi integration crisis split generally along sectional lines.

Following the president's radio television address Sunday night urging compliance by Mississippians with federal court orders, seven of the state's eight members of Congress attacked it sharply. Senators from the North and West praised it as being an expression of the public will.

Somewhere in between was Sen. Allan J. Ellender, D-La. Referring to federal court orders demanding admission of Negro James H. Meredith to the all-white University at Oxford, Miss., Ellender said: "I don't like the decision of the court in this case a minute, but since it is the law, I don't see how it can be bypassed."

Eastland Disagrees
Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said succinctly, "I disagree entirely with the President's speech."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said, "Thank God that reason, understanding and law seem to have prevailed."

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., called the address "both a strong and reasonable statement."

The President's speech drew support from Republicans, too. Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., said, "I thought the President expressed the sentiments of the government and the people of the United States extremely well. I support wholeheartedly what he said."

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said of the speech, "Of course, I agree with it and I hope it will be effective."

Speech Denounced
Eastland joined Sen. John Stennis and five of Mississippi's six House members in a statement denouncing the speech and Kennedy's actions in marshalling federal forces to back up the court orders.

"Just as we have in the past, we shall continue to oppose the shape of a nurse's cap."

Barnett Must Have Known He'd Lose

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Mississippi's Gov. Ross F. Barnett, while, doing himself no end of political good at home with his defiance, didn't have to think hard to figure how the federal government could box him in.
And, when he did get boxed, he said what must have been obvious to him from the start: that the power of the federal government was too much for him.
Barnett had only one long chance of winning in his defiance of a U.S. court order that James H. Meredith, 29-year-old Negro and a Korean War veteran, must be enrolled as a student at the University of Mississippi.
Far-Fetched
The chance—too far-fetched to be considered seriously by any one who understands American history and government—was that President Kennedy might chicken out and fail to back up the federal court.
Kennedy wasn't the first president to run into defiance from a state or a governor. What they could do, he could do, and he did, which is what practically everybody outside of Mississippi must have expected him to do.
President Jackson got a sharp taste of this defiance before the Civil War when South Carolina, because it disliked a certain tariff act, decided it wouldn't let federal officials collect the duties in that state.
This was the so-called doctrine of nullification—sometimes called interposition—in which a state assumes the right to decide when to, and when not to, obey a law or consider it constitutional.
Then in 1857 Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus tried interposition without directly saying so. In fact, he was pretty oblique about his whole performance.
Although a federal court had ordered Negro children admitted to a Little Rock high school, Faubus called up the Arkansas National Guard.

He avoided direct defiance of the court order by saying he had called out the Guard to keep order. But the effect was the same. The troops kept the children out of school.
Faubus backtracked fast when President Eisenhower sent in federal troops and, to take control of the Guard from Faubus, called the state troops into national service.
Discredited
With these two examples of interposition — and others — completely rejected and discredited in American life, Barnett nevertheless tried his own brand of interposition.
It must have been plain to him Kennedy could do not less than Eisenhower if he pushed his defiance too hard. He pushed, even further than Faubus.
He directly defied the court order to let Meredith register at Ole Miss by personally blocking him. The court then found Barnett guilty of contempt.
It gave him until Tuesday morning to clear himself—by letting Meredith in—or face a fine of $10,000 a day for every day he blocked the Negro, plus being locked up.
Kennedy Slow
Meantime, although he was slow in doing it, Kennedy sent in marshals, prepared to send in troops, and, like Eisenhower, called the Mississippi National Guard into federal service to take it from under control of the governor.
Thus Barnett got himself caught between the court and the President, a box from which there could be no escape since, if necessary, the troops could be used not only to get Meredith registered but to arrest Barnett for the court.
Barnett had to know this was exactly the box he'd get into. He is not a novice in law or history. He is a lawyer himself and has an attorney general to tell him about the law if he has any doubts.
So the Mississippi governor finally conceded he was out-matched. But as an aftermath of Barnett's performance men were shot in rioting on the school campus Sunday night and others were hurt.
"Spectacle"
The United States, which is trying to win the friendship of Africans and other colored people around the world and keep them from communism, becomes an international spectacle of bloody racism.
But, since Barnett had the support of a lot, perhaps most, white Mississippians where the Negro vote doesn't count for much, he should have a very successful political career for some time.
Faubus in Arkansas got himself re-elected handsomely after only a half-hearted show of defiance.

Tubman Trying For African Showcase

Liberian Leader Modernizing His Emerging Nation
BY ROBERT N. LINDSAY
MONROVIA, Liberia (AP)—This is Africa's oldest republic, and President William Vacanarat Shadrach Tubman seeks to make it the showcase of black Africa. He hasn't done it yet, despite a flood of American dollars, but his supporters say the tide is turning.
The capital, Monrovia, once a mud-stained cluster of iron shacks, now boasts a handsome 10-story hotel and a residential district that any American city would be proud of.
But the city's squalid slums are still there, some within a few blocks of Tubman's air-conditioned residence.
Squandering
The few who venture to speak out against the president complain that he has squandered national funds on needless projects. They point to Tubman's new executive mansion being built at a cost of about $15 million—roughly equal to half the republic's annual revenue. Then there are the law building, recently completed at a cost of $4.5 million, and the government's new $1-million information center.
Tubman's supporters insist that all this frosting was needed to maintain Liberia's standing and to keep pace with such neighbors as Ghana which has also spent millions on public buildings.
New Line
They also note that Tubman has called a halt to his building spree and embarked on a program to better the lot of his one million five per cent of whom can read poverty-plagued countrymen, only or write.
In an effort to bring Liberia's primitive rural areas into the 20th century, Tubman has launched a drive to improve education and health in this Ohio-size country. Other goals are to modernize agriculture and forestry and build more modern roads under guidance of U.S. highway engineers.
The United States has poured $134 million into Liberia since Tubman took over in 1944. With apparent nudging from Washington, the president has blown the whistle on graft, long a popular pastime in government circles.
He recently fired his public works minister on charges of taking bribes. He impounded the automobile of a high government official's wife because she tried to get license plates free.
Tubman has also cracked down on tax defaulters. In a year this increased the number of returns by 400 per cent and doubled the revenue.
To bolster social and economic reforms, Tubman has decreed that all government employees must put in an extra hour each day. He appealed to the rest of the nation to work harder.

An Unnecessary Strike

The end of the telegraphers strike against the North Western Railway is welcome indeed but the people of the nine midwestern states served by the company probably are somewhat less than enthusiastic over the means now available for handling such matters. The fact is there should have been no strike! There should never be such a strike!

What was gained by it? At the beginning of the strike a month ago both sides were told by the federal negotiators that they could settle the matter then and get everything they could expect at the end of a long strike. That advice now has been proved to be correct. The 1,000 strikers and 15,500 other railroad employees who were thrown out of work now are returning to work under terms that surely could have been agreed upon before the strike started.

The details of the settlement are not known, but President Kennedy reported that the company and the union had reached agreement on all but four issues and that those four would be submitted to compulsory arbitration. The matter which drew the strike out for nearly a week longer than had been expected was the back to work schedule. George A. Leighty, president of the union declined comment on this matter, and Ben W. Heineman, chairman of the North Western board, said the agreement was satisfactory.

Honesty in Packaging

Appleton's common council and sealer of weights and measures have set an example for the rest of the state, and the nation for that matter, in launching an attack on misleading advertising by national firms on package labels.

The ordinance recently adopted by the council at the urging of City Sealer Roger LaBerge was modeled after a state statute which gives the local government an arm for preventing shortages in boxes and packages.

At the same time, the legislation adopted locally gives the shopper a better chance of getting his or her money's worth by making the actual weight of the content more conspicuous on the package.

A story in the Post-Crescent last week reviewing monthly reports of the city sealer points out glaring violations on the part of some packaging firms in short-weighting retailers and their customers. Something is radically wrong when major shortages are found in Appleton, and undoubtedly other parts of the country, month after month, year after year.

LaBerge is to be commended for the realistic approach he is taking to the problem. He plans to send letters to national firms violating the ordinance and advise them to take the necessary steps to correct the situation. Should a firm fail to cooperate, the city attorney will be asked to start court action.

LaBerge says, and we agree, that putting the truth back into packaging cannot

W. Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor, and Francis A. O'Neill Jr., of the National Mediation Board, with the full power of the United States government behind them, did a commendable piece of work. Apparently they succeeded in getting an agreement which both sides will support and that is the true test of a successful settlement.

It is quite obvious, however, that the machinery the government has for preventing such strikes is obsolete. The government had used every means provided by law to delay the strike until agreement could be brought about by pressure of public opinion.

This means that we should have some better and more positive way of preventing a strike which will have results extending far beyond the concern of the company and the union. Hundreds of businesses and thousands of people using the company's services were seriously affected. It is time for congress to recognize that those people have some rights too. The arbitration that was demanded by the President after the strike had run for two weeks might have been just as effective if it was demanded two weeks before the strike started.

Labor, management and congress have something to think about and agree upon before the public rises up and demands drastic action.

be accomplished by just one community. It takes the cooperative effort of many local, state and national governmental agencies to insure that the consumer gets the protection he deserves.

We applaud the recent statement of a state official that the State of Wisconsin is going to crack down on firms short-changing the public weight-wise.

Due credit must go to Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., who has joined Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., in sponsoring non-partisan "Truth in Packaging" legislation in the Senate.

The senators realize that the length to which some food processors have gone in getting out deceptive packages has been almost beyond belief. The practice of course has been spread further by competition and no doubt many manufacturers who were compelled by competition to enter into this packaging deception will welcome such legislation.

The bill proposes that the net weight of contents of any package be displayed on the front panel in a conspicuous manner. Packages are to have no illustrations to deceive customers as to content. Manufacturers may not print "cents off" deals, "economy size" designations or any other information implying a price advantage.

The intention of the law is to protect the customer and to provide guidelines for manufacturers for realistic, rather than artificial competitive practices.

It's a good feeling to know that Appleton has a head start.

More American Babies Live

Records in low rates for infant mortality were established in America in 1960 and again in 1961. The rates were respectively 25.7 and 25.3 deaths per thousand for those years.

This is an astonishing gain when it is recalled that as many as one in 10 American babies born in 1950 died before their first birthday. But the proportion now is about 1 in 40 which is a reduction of nearly 75 per cent. The Health Information Foundation reported those statistics recently and announced that the infant mortality decline would probably continue. The Foundation traces the diminishing hazards of infancy from the time of World War I to the present, and says that the greatest advances during this time have been made against the infective and parasitic diseases, respiratory conditions and digestive diseases. The bulletin, noting that the rate dropped to 33.8 deaths per 1,000 live births during the first year following World War II, says that it probably resulted from the newly widespread use of penicillin by civilians and extensive applications of DDT. After 1946 the general downward trend continued until 1957. Then, according to the Foundation report, the Asian influenza epidemic of 1957-58 increased the mortality rate. However, the downward trend continued again in 1958.

The benefits have not been equally distributed, however. For example, some 29 per cent more male infants died than female infants. Proportionately more non-white infants died than white infants although over the years the non-white infant mortality rate has shown a more substantial decline than for the white race.

Likewise all areas of the country are not equally blessed. West North Central and New England areas are currently the lowest. The Pacific area including Alaska is third, followed by a more heavily industrialized East North Central area which includes Wisconsin and the middle Atlantic areas. The highest rates in the nation are in the South Atlantic states and the East South Central states. Utah has the best record and is followed closely by Minnesota. The bulletin notes that if the level of survival obtained in Utah had been maintained throughout the country some 27,000 more infants would have lived.

What Others are Saying

Paper Industry Employment in State Most Encouraging Sign

From the Milwaukee Journal

One of the best bits of economic news in a long time is the announcement that employment in the Wisconsin pulp and paper industry is now estimated at 42,671, an increase of 2,300 over last year's estimate.

This is more reassuring than such figures sometimes are because the increased employment comes about very largely from heavy investments recently in added mill capacity and modernization, that indicates the mills plan to stay and grow here. Total investment in Wisconsin's paper industry is now about $900,000,000, largest of any state in the nation.

Wisconsin is now the top paper producing state in the country. And the 31,668 mill employees represent 10 per cent of the state's entire manufacturing personnel. Another 9,883 are employed in paper and paperboard conversion plants.

Even these figures don't begin to tell what Wisconsin's 49 pulp, paper and paperboard mills mean to the prosperity of our state. They do not take into account thousands of men who find employment as independent operators cutting pulpwood to sell to the mills. Last year those mills used about $15 million worth of Wisconsin pulpwood most of it from other than the industry's own forests. There is no estimating the importance of this pulpwood market in the restoration and utilization of Wisconsin's great forest resources, either. It provides an income from quick growing aspen and jack pine while waiting for the high value new red and white pine stands in those forests to mature.

The stability of the pulp and paper industry and the evidence that the demand for its products is increasing even faster than the population give real cause for confidence. "America's Dairyland" can be most happy that it is "America's paperland," too.

'Infuriating Little Devil, Isn't He?'

'Silent Spring'

New Book About Threat Posed By Chemicals Is Frightening

BY ERIC SEVAREID

There is in this country a confident, quiet-eyed woman who is about to demonstrate, if advance portents and premonitions be well founded, the truth of the remark that nothing is more powerful than an idea whose time has come.

Sevareid

The woman is Miss Rachel Carson, biologist, author of "The Sea Around Us," poet and reverential scholar of nature. The idea, which is not hers alone but one that has been gathering force and adherents in a swelling wave of concern, is that man has forgotten he is a child of nature — or God — has come to believe that he can "conquer" nature, and in his attempts is very likely to destroy his own place in nature and thus himself.

He may do more than that; he may write "finis" to the whole story of creation. It was Dr. Albert Schweitzer who said, "Man has lost the capacity to foresee and to forestall. He will end by destroying the earth." It is with this quotation that Miss Carson begins "Silent Spring," a little book so explosive on every page that it can hardly fail to startle and frighten all laymen who read it, convulse the chemical industry and possibly create a whole new political issue, crossing all party and sectional lines.

ATTACKS USE OF CHEMICALS She does not deal with the possibility of racial suicide through atomic war; she has little to say about radiation and its ultimate effects; she leaves to others the disturbing question of the new "miracle" drugs and what their cumulative effect may be in the human liver, nervous system and reproductive processes. Her own salient attack and exposure is the now almost universal use of chemicals, both inorganic and the new organic, synthetic chemicals sprayed wholesale upon our croplands, forests, mosquito swamps and tree-lined city streets.

I will not try to reproduce here the graphic revelations of the immense harm already done to man's environment, the incalculable harm the future may unfold the self-defeating nature of many past and present attempts to eliminate injurious insects, or Miss Carson's outline of the new avenue through which men may control enemy insects without disorganizing nature's balance and the built-in balance of his own body. The book must be read, and then the counterattack of the chemical companies, which have been in a fever of preparation for weeks, must be followed, if Americans generally are to comprehend the problem and then act upon the consensus that surely must emerge from an argument so vital to human well-being.

It is entirely possible that Miss Carson overstates her case in some respects, obsessed as she is with the new, unplotted and mysterious dangers we insist upon creating all around us, in the air we breathe, the food we eat, the waters we drink; but surely it is past time for responsible and informed minds to become obsessed. All reformers, political, economic and scientific, have initially sounded like fanatics to the bulk of us, comfortable in our ignorance, prone to seek compromise, feeling in our bones that somehow "things will turn out all right," because things have usually done so in the past.

But three propositions remain incontrovertible: this generation's manipulation of the basic elements of nature, in drugs, pesticides, in radiation is not under control, either between governments or within private industry; the total consequences to human life from the wholesale release of the new substances into the scheme of nature is not only unknown but hardly guessable; we have reached the point where, if it is not already too late, the benefit of the doubt concerning every proposed action or substance absolutely must be given to the side of caution.

HOUR IS LATE It is not being "alarmist" — it is only repeating the private and public thoughts of a growing body of scientists and philosophers to say that the hour is later than most of us know. There are those unshakably persuaded that all the past dangers and crises of man in all known history were minor, because transitory, compared to the irreparable injuries we are now doing and are preparing to do in increasing frequency and extent. It is quite wrong for us to assume that in atomic war lies the only danger of "setting back civilization a thousand years;" in some areas of the globe sheer overpopulation, resulting from the well-intended efforts of preventive medicine, appears to be doing this already; and Miss Carson warns that the insects themselves, earth's inhabitants eons before man, infinitely more durable than man, have the capacity to overwhelm us in a retaliatory avalanche because of our tinkering with their natural balance.

Such dire prophecies were once the exclusive province of science fiction; but we should have learned from the realm of space exploration that what is fiction today is fact tomorrow, because human imagination is able harm the future may unfold the self-defeating nature of many past and present attempts to eliminate injurious insects, or Miss Carson's outline of the new avenue through which men may control enemy insects without disorganizing nature's balance and the built-in balance of his own body. The book must be read, and then the counterattack of the chemical companies, which have been in a fever of preparation for weeks, must be followed, if Americans generally are to comprehend the problem and then act upon the consensus that surely must emerge from an argument so vital to human well-being.

Democratic Candidate Declines

100 YEARS AGO Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Oct. 4, 1862.

It is with feelings of mingled mortification and surprise that we lay the following dispatch before our readers, announcing the peremptory declination of Mr. Fitzgerald, received just before going to press:

"New York, Oct. 2, 1862 — I have decided to change my residence to this city and therefore must decline the nomination for Congress." (He was chosen Democratic candidate at the Fifth District convention) — John Fitzgerald.

We regret this news exceedingly, as Mr. F. would have been triumphantly elected. It is now too late to call a new convention, so the best thing that now can be done, will be for the Congressional Committee to meet and present some good man on whom the democracy (Democrats) can unite to defeat Browne (GOP candidate for Fifth District).

The Motor, in a labored article of nearly a column, endeavors to make a point against us on account of our position on the President's Proclamation. It charges us with being the personal and official organ of Mr. Fitzgerald. Now, we wish to inform our contemporary that we speak for ourselves — we are not owned nor mortgaged to any man's dictum!

Both Candidates for Governor Advocate A Four-Year Term

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The principle of the strong executive in the state government is one of the background factors in the campaign for the governorship.

The public and private declarations of both gubernatorial nominees make it clear that whoever wins the top executive office in the state government, he will strive to make of the position a more forceful voice in establishing policy, in guiding the legislature, and in managing the ordinary operations of the multitude of state services.

It has been related in this space before that the people this year have been offered for the governorship two men of exceptional understanding of the nature of the job they are seeking, and the problems currently facing the state. Both happen to be young and intelligent. Both have had more exposure to politics and government in their comparatively short careers than many others who were nominated without such practical involvement in political life.

One of the proofs of their sophistication about governmental affairs is their recognition that this state historically has had a weak executive as the nominal head of the political system. It is not especially related to the character or the disposition of past governors. It is the system that has assured a governorship of less than usual command authority, less power than most of the voters have assumed is implicit in the office.

HOW IT GOES

The governor has relatively few inherent powers, contrary to the public conception. Virtually everything he does is strictly controlled by law. He has a few the prisoner of natural reality and what can be imagined can be done. Men have imagined the destruction of life on this planet, therefore men can do it. In the sum total of uncontrolled, uncontrolled often unseen little actions, men are steadily moving toward that goal now and will reach it unless they stop themselves by other acts. If these actions spring from reason, if they spring from fear, so be it.

The new religion of the scientist-philosopher, like the old-time religion, invokes the sanction of hellfire and damnation — but with proof.

(Copyright 1962)

constitutional responsibilities and privileges. But in the ordinary operation of the state's programs, he is the creature of statute, and those statutes over many generations have evolved to apply a strict control over his actions.

Nominally he picks the principal administrative officials, for example. But in fact their terms are long, and also staggered, so that even if a very popular man is elected in a landslide, he can do very little in changing the roster of officialdom in the key agencies during his first term of office.

To get control through his own nominees he must be elected twice. To get real control he must serve about three terms. Moreover, in each appointment of any consequence he faces the fact that the state senate must confirm, and that it can and sometimes does veto the governor's choices.

The governor by law is the chairman of many of the big and prestigious state boards and commissions — the building commission for example. Yet he has only one vote there. He merely holds the gavel. The other members can and sometimes do outvote him and impose their own will. There are scores of such limitations on the power of the executive that the public does not see — and sometimes does not believe.

LONGER TERM

The tradition of the executive of severely limited powers accounts for the fact that much of the professional civil service can contemplate an election and a change in the leadership of the state government with considerable equanimity. Chances are it won't affect the average bureaucrat at all.

Leadership, of course, involves a man's personal qualities of mind and heart as well as law.

But it is an important footnote to the current rivalry between Kuehn, and Reynolds that they have separately concluded and declared that one of the obvious needs for change in Wisconsin political policy is a lengthening of the term of the governor to four years.

They are not talking about themselves as potential governors. They would continue to serve under the two year term of historical tradition. A change would require a constitutional amendment and at least four years of time. But it is evident that one of the ingredients of the weak executive idea in Wisconsin is the fact that under the present law a governor does not hold office long enough, whatever his electoral margin, to get his seat warm.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

"We ought to consider women in our space program, gentlemen! ... If the Russians get ahead of us in THAT we'd never hear the last of it!"

Taxes Playing Larger Role in Business Views

New Bill to Offer Incentives for Major Investment

NEW YORK (AP)—Taxes play an ever bigger role in business decisions. Corporate finance officers and lawyers will have their homework laid out for them as business plans and practices are adjusted to the new tax bill.

Invest in capital goods and take advantage of the new tax credits? Or forego the credit but make this year's earnings statement look better to stockholders?

Expense account items — are they clearly connected with business as the new law specifies — corporate business, that is, not funny business? And how clear does clearly have to be?

Overseas branches—tax havens, or growth concerns with profits plowed back for prudent expansion?

New Bill

After many months, Congress has worked out a tax bill of its own. It falls far short of what the administration asked—a shortfall that many businessmen applaud—particularly the scuttling of the proposal to withhold dividend and interest income. In fact, the revised bill is notable more for what is left out than what it put in.

And the bill now in its final stages in Congress is far short of what the administration says it will ask of the next Congress.

But like all tax bills, the changes it proposes will be subject to interpretation in individual applications. Corporate finance officers and lawyers will go to work on seeing how their company fits into the new scheme.

Take investment credit. Income tax payments could be cut up to 7 per cent of the cost of much newly bought equipment. But buildings aren't included. And there are complicated rules on the carryover of unused credits to future years, or even to refueling past years.

Offer Incentive

The provision is said to offer a tax incentive of up to a billion dollars which the administration hopes business will take — using such a saving to buy new equipment and thus boost the capital goods industries.

But each company will decide for itself if it wants to do this. The problem is both whether it thinks its prospects justify such investment and whether the cut in reported net earnings—inherent in this and the previously announced new rules on depreciation—would look too hard to the stockholders.

Expense account changes may bring lots of arguments, too. The new rules call for some business discussions either before or after going to a prize fight—but not too long after or before. And in a trip for both business and pleasure, the cost of the pleasure shouldn't total.

Here's How the Other Half Lives on Retiring

BY THOMAS COLLINS

Retired people, as a rule, do not need much balm for their wounds. By age 65 they have toughened up, and the barbs of the world don't hurt too much. They can manage.

Collins

So what follows here is not intended as balm. Instead it is a factual account—based on the many letters that are coming to me—of what is happening to "all the other people" out in retirement. If it gives some consolation to those who are growing old, then maybe they won't mind. It should be emphasized that this is not an opinion piece by an expert, or a theoretical talk on how things might be. It is an account of modern-day retirement as people who are out there are telling it to me.

Not Rich

1. Most retired people aren't as rich as other people think they are. The average citizen who has retired from a normal job with a normal company is getting $200 to $225 a month from pension and Social Security. For many reasons he and his wife may not be getting maximum Social Security. And even if the company he retires from has a good pension system—and it may not have—the average citizen has been switching jobs over the last 25 years and has not built a large pension fund.

There are exceptions of course . . . the fellow who got in on Social Security in the 30's and kept his face washed for the next 30 years, meanwhile paying weekly into a pension fund. He may be getting $350. And the corporation executives, now living in Santa Barbara or the Carolina hills, got some fat deals to go away and get lost. They may be getting $20,000 a year.

The nest egg of "all the other people" in retirement usually ranges from $4,000 to $10,000, except that those people who owned a house and sold it have $14,000 or so salted away. They are the rich ones.

2. Most children of retired people, now between 35 and 45 and with families and ambitions of their own, intend to be attentive to their parents. Occasionally they are. But not very.

They are most attentive when the parents have money, when the parents live close and it costs no money to visit them, or when the parents have the rooms and food to put the child's family up for a free vacation. Many retired people feel they are failures or their children are ingrates when they cause of the pain.

3. A long helpless illness is the deepest fear of most retired people . . . because of the bother and expense apparently and not because the man in retirement . . . at least for the first couple of years, cope with one of the most serious problems of their marriage when their husbands come home to relax. Home is seldom set up for a wife's routine, firmly set by her over the years, provides no role for a husband except in the evenings and on weekends. As she struggles to adjust to the new situation, and the husband struggles to adjust to her, temperaments in time will clash. But this happens not just to Mrs. Smith. It happens to Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Brown, and Mrs. Johnson, too. Mrs. Smith doesn't know this.

6. Loneliness in retirement is not a rare disease. Nearly everybody catches it from time to time. (Copyright, 1962)

From Pavement Plato

Modern Civilization Like a Roller Coaster

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk comments of a Pavement Plato. Sometimes modern civilization seems like two fellows riding on a roller coaster and each screaming in the other's ear, "What we need to do is to relax!"

But neither wants to be the first to get off the roller coaster, although they don't seem to be riding in any place in particular.

The go-getter—the eternal hustler—is the 20th century American hero, and that may explain most of the things that are wrong with the 20th century.

There was a long period in our history when the dawdler, the tinkerer, the man who sat down and whittled while he thought a thing through, was our national folk hero.

Became Legend

He became part of the American legend, but now he seems either to be forgotten or a figure of amused contempt.

How long has it been since you actually saw a man sit down, take up a piece of wood and whittle on it? How long since you did this yourself? Can you even remember?

The motto today is "Don't just stand there. Do something. Anything!"

If you can't do anything else, have a nervous breakdown. At least then you're getting something done.

Man still doesn't know how his glands operate, but he is involved in a vast and costly race to see who can get to the moon first. Before he even understands himself, he wants to be a go-getter on a cosmic scale.

It takes a lot of courage anymore to be a dawdler. He is regarded as either downright immoral or a roadblock in the path of progress. This is because we tend to confuse mere bustle with actual achievement.

Actually, it is the constructive dawdler who is the real man-spring of progress. He is no craven prisoner of an endless sense of hurry. He has time to puzzle and ponder how to make things better.

Watched Kettle

The invention of the steam engine, we are told, was speeded by James Watt's daydreaming while watching a kitchen teapot bubble. Such original ideas spring from a sense of wonder, and ideas are stubborn things that refuse to be rushed.

Your typical go-getter often is too impatient to pause and wait for the fruition of his ideas—if he has any at all. He is too busy running to keep appointments, waving his hands and making loud noises, or pushing buttons better left unpushed.

That's the real danger with the go-getter philosophy: it sometimes results in getting things done that were better left undone.

Wouldn't all of us in this nervous, restless life we live get more zest out of our years—and perhaps have more years to enjoy that zest—if we spent more time in placid, creative, restful dawdling?

The next time you meet an eager beaver go-getter, grab him firmly by both lapels and slow him down long enough to ask him, "Why so eager, beaver. Where are you going? Is what you're trying to get really worth getting?"

3 steps to happiness

There are 3 guiding principles which create peace of mind. In this rewarding article a noted pastor tells you how to apply them to your life.

"This profound yet remarkably simple approach can open up a new world of self-confidence."

Sees Students Turn Into Mississippi Mob

was reported to be a co-ed, hit in the stomach by a tear gas shell, and the third was also said to be a marshal.

For nearly two hours the demonstration appeared restricted to students.

Their demonstration, however, got out of hand with the attack on a TV cameraman, who had to be whisked away by state police men.

The mob smashed windows and headlights of the car of the cameraman, Gordon Yoder, of Dallas, and his wife were whisked from the scene by state police.

Then they turned on other cameramen. At least 12 cameras were smashed.

Use Tear Gas

Cigarette butts were hurled at the feet of the marshals guarding the Lyceum building, then pop bottles, then bricks.

At a command, the marshals donned gas masks, and some 20 tear gas shells were lobbed into the mob, banging with loud reports.

Gulls became hysterical, they sank to the ground, weeping and vomiting from the gas.

The marshals pursued the students in small groups, but the youngsters gathered again and charged toward the Lyceum.

Finally, about 10 p.m., most of the students had disappeared in to the dormitories.

Then the outsiders took over, and Gen. Walker was on the scene.

Now the skirmishing took on the aspects of warfare.

Windows Smashed

Rioters rampaged over the campus smashing every window in sight.

They armed themselves with bricks from piles at the site of a new science building under construction at the edge of campus.

Some of the bricks were carried to the scene of battle in wheelbarrows.

Hundreds were hurled through out the darkness and whirling smoke at the marshals.

Meantime, the state police, who earlier had assisted keeping order, left the campus in a caravan of 40 cars.

They took no action against the outside rioters. In fact, some of them were overheard making statements to the students about "the nigger" on campus.

As the fighting progressed the change in the character of the rioters could be easily detected by their garb. Gone were the students in khakis or Bermuda shorts. Here now were angry men with ducktail haircuts, wearing blue jeans and wild-colored shirts.

The 200 marshals had to send out for more tear gas shells as the fighting went on past midnight.

Wear Steel Helmets

The marshals all wore business suits and white steel helmets. Wrapped around them were yellow ammunition jackets containing the tear gas shells. Some were believed to be carrying pistols, but this reporter saw no pistols fired. The marshals did use scatter-type shotguns.

The day's action began at about 3 p.m., when state police blocked the five entrances to the campus.

A short time later the marshals arrived in army transport planes at the Oxford airport.

They piled into seven waiting trucks, as a crowd of about 1,000 cheering Mississippians gathered. Suddenly, an air force jet from Washington zoomed out of the sky, and out stepped high Justice Department officials.

Their car formed up in a caravan with the trucks and headed toward town.

Everyone appeared to expect the caravan to go to a camp set up by the army on the outskirts of Oxford.

But suddenly, it veered to the right, and sped toward the campus and a back entrance.

The very state police who last week under direction of Gov. Ross Barnett thwarted efforts to enroll Meredith and had pushed and shoved marshals, now directed traffic and escorted the caravan too, had been secretly brought on to campus. It was then that the students began to gather in front of the Lyceum.

But word got out that Meredith, a Negro, right center, is escorted by federal marshals as he arrived in Oxford, Miss., Sunday night to register at the University of Mississippi. (AP Wirephoto)

Kennedy Has Busy Weekend

White House, usually quiet as a tomb on Sundays, was humming. Several dozen newsmen overflowed into the lobby from the cramped press room.

The President huddled in his office with assistants — including special counsel and chief speech writer Theodore C. Sorensen, just back from more than a week in the hospital for ulcer treatments.

Tempo Grows

For two hours the President turned from the crisis of Oxford to the old crises of Berlin, Havana and the Congo as he lunched with Lord Home, the British foreign secretary, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

By midafternoon the tempo at the Justice Department had picked up. More aides and secretaries joined Robert Kennedy in his office suite.

One official said the time the attorney general spent on the telephone between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. was "almost total."

The time ticked on toward 7.30 p.m., when the President was to start his nationwide talk.

By 3.30 p.m. the President had been crowded out of his office by television and radio technicians setting up equipment, and had moved into the Cabinet room.

In shirtsleeves he worked on his speech, sharpening the emphasis and revising to conform with developments.

About an hour before air time, the President abruptly delayed his speech for 2½ hours, until 10 p.m., whipping up speculation that a truce or settlement had been reached.

Then the word came: Meredith was in the school, had been given an apartment but not allowed to register because, said school officials, it was Sunday.

A half hour before air time, Kennedy strolled into his office, lawfully blocking them" and had long as he is in any danger."

At least 40 marshals have been berthed at Baxter Hall, the campus.

Kennedy Says Troops Callup Was Necessary

Meredith and his marshal escort were threatened with arrest and got lost trying to locate his first class as a light rain began falling. Impassioned students, yelling and shouting, became an obligation of the United States government.

"Even though this government," Kennedy said, "I deeply regret the fact that through the familiar routine, said Sterling Slappey, a representative of the news magazine, U.S. News and World Report.

A few minutes after Meredith hour and a half the rioters had the Lyceum held federal marshals and National Guardsmen trapped.

Marshals and Troops Watch Meredith Enroll

James H. Meredith—as is done with all students at Ole Miss—was performed by Registrar Robert Ellis, who did it under threat of contempt from the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

At the five gates of the University, some students strode off campus suitcases swinging at their sides. Whether they were quitting college was undetermined.

Strange Registration

Other students walked aimlessly around the campus, the drive for education dissipated in a tension of trouble. They didn't talk much. They just walked and they looked—at the unsightly remnants of a night of tragedy.

Meredith's registration was a strange and eerie sight.

The Confederate flag—the ancient banner of the South which football fans of the school wave during their football heroes on Saturdays—hung at half staff in front of the Lyceum.

Federal marshals, a bit worse for wear after the night of shambles, surrounded the old Doric building. The only witnesses to an historic education event in this deep South bastion of segregation were these marshals and a few newsmen.

Lost on Way to Class

Meredith and his marshal escort were threatened with arrest and got lost trying to locate his first class as a light rain began falling. Impassioned students, yelling and shouting, became an obligation of the United States government.

"Even though this government," Kennedy said, "I deeply regret the fact that through the familiar routine, said Sterling Slappey, a representative of the news magazine, U.S. News and World Report.

pus apartment building where Meredith was housed Sunday night.

4,000 Troops Present

The government built up its strength during the night despite the lull in the disorder. An Army spokesman said 4,000 regular troops now are in Oxford.

That was nearly as many human beings as live in Oxford itself. The town's population is 5,283.

In a resurgence of violence, a group of men attacked Army jeeps as they drove around the campus area—heaving rocks and bottles. The attack came at 7 a.m. about 45 minutes after the Army reported the campus secured.

Jeering crowds still clustered in mobile groups at some points in Oxford but no other reports of violence have been received.

Most of the jeeps attacked received smashed windshields. In each instance of attack, the soldiers screamed to a halt, formed meticulously and routed the throwers of missiles.

A French newsmen, Paul Guillard, died amid the fog of tear gas, a bullet in his back. He was reporting for the London Daily Sketch and Agence France Presse.

A jukebox reported for the George Gunter, 23 was shot twice, once through the head and once through the body. He was dead on arrival at a hospital. State police said he was killed on the campus.

Two marshals and a newsmen were among approximately 20 casualties, resulting from bird shot, bullets, rocks and tossed soft drink bottles. The condition of the two marshals was serious.

With the riot eight hours old a few minutes after 3 a.m. Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea ordered federal troops on the campus to use any force necessary to put down rioting.

MPs On Guard

Their bayonets fixed, 200 military policemen trained in riot control stood in front of the administration building where for an hour and a half the rioters had the Lyceum held federal marshals and National Guardsmen trapped.

This emotional explosion was the worst since the U.S. Supreme Court made its historic 1954 decision outlawing segregation in public schools.

It was the gravest crisis between Mississippi and the federal government since the Civil War, Mississippi National Guard units

Seize Bulldozer

Once the students commandeered a bulldozer. They roared slowly toward the marshals but it broke down before it could reach effective range.

Again, they drove a fire truck at the federal line. The truck, too, stopped running at a crucial moment.

Twice massed students charged against a shower of tear gas grenades hurled by the marshals. Former Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker, the man who led the troops ordered by President Eisenhower into Little Rock in 1957 in another desegregation crisis, led a thousand college youths in one charge that fell back a hundred yards from the marshals.

Walker jumped on the Confederate memorial and yelled: "If you can't win, go home. Don't stay at the university. But, let's not quit. We can win."

DODGE PRESENTS THE DEPENDABLES FOR 1963!

1963 DODGE... BEAUTIFUL NEW ENTRY IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD

1963 DODGE DART... A FRESH NEW COMPACT IN THE LARGE ECONOMY SIZE

INTRODUCING THE 1963 DODGE

Now a complete new line of cars in the low-price field. The 1963 Dodge! People who see it just naturally get carried away. Reasons? 1. The looks: Great! 2. The price: Low! Wouldn't you rather own a Dodge than other low-priced cars? 3. The room: Big! Notice how the roofline sweeps straight back. That means ample headroom for the people in back, not just the ones in front. Seat? Your choice of models with sofa style, buckets or fold-down center arm rest. 4. The upkeep: Low! Dodge is rust-protected. The body unitized. The brakes self-adjusting. A major grease job lasts 32,000 miles, an oil change 4,000. 5. The feel behind the wheel: Like nothing else! Five strong engines to choose from. Smooth-going torsion-bar ride. Easy low-friction steering. Comfortable chair-high seats. Nylon, leather-grained vinyls. There are several hundred more reasons why you'll be carried away. Your Dodge Dealer has 'em all.

INTRODUCING COMPACT '63 DART

At last. A compact that doesn't give anyone the sardine treatment. The 1963 Dodge Dart! Now everybody gets a fair shake on room. Note the roofline. It goes straight back. Result: Even rear-seat hat wearers are treated with deference. And so are those who like some action for a change. Dart's standard Six leaves run-of-the-mill compacts waiting and wheezing. Its optional engine (just a few bucks more) is the same way, only more so. Economical? Like you'd expect a compact to be! That's the whole idea. Dart's too roomy to be a compact, too darned thrifty to be anything else.

Few compacts cost less than Dart. None offers the value. A unitized body, for example, that's rust-protected. 32,000 miles between major grease jobs. Road-smoothing torsion-bar ride. An alternator. A high-speed starter for fast starts. Two series. Nine models, including two convertibles. See your Dodge Dealer.

NEW 5-YEAR/50,000-MILE WARRANTY! Your authorized Dodge Dealer's Warranty against defects in material and workmanship on 1963 cars has been expanded to include parts replacement or repair for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, on the engine block, head and internal parts; transmission case and internal parts; torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints (excluding dust covers), rear axle and differential, and rear wheel bearings—provided the vehicle has been serviced at reasonable intervals according to the Dodge Certified Car Care schedules. Factory approved remanufactured parts may be used for replacement.

Mark Antony, Cleopatra Stars at 'Riverview on the Nile' Saturday

Long Eyelashes Were 'the better to be coy with,' Cleopatra discovered long long ago. Her modern counterparts were not to be outdone. Above, Mrs. John Reeve and Richard Baker share a toast to the glamor of a bygone day at Riverview Country Club Party Saturday evening.

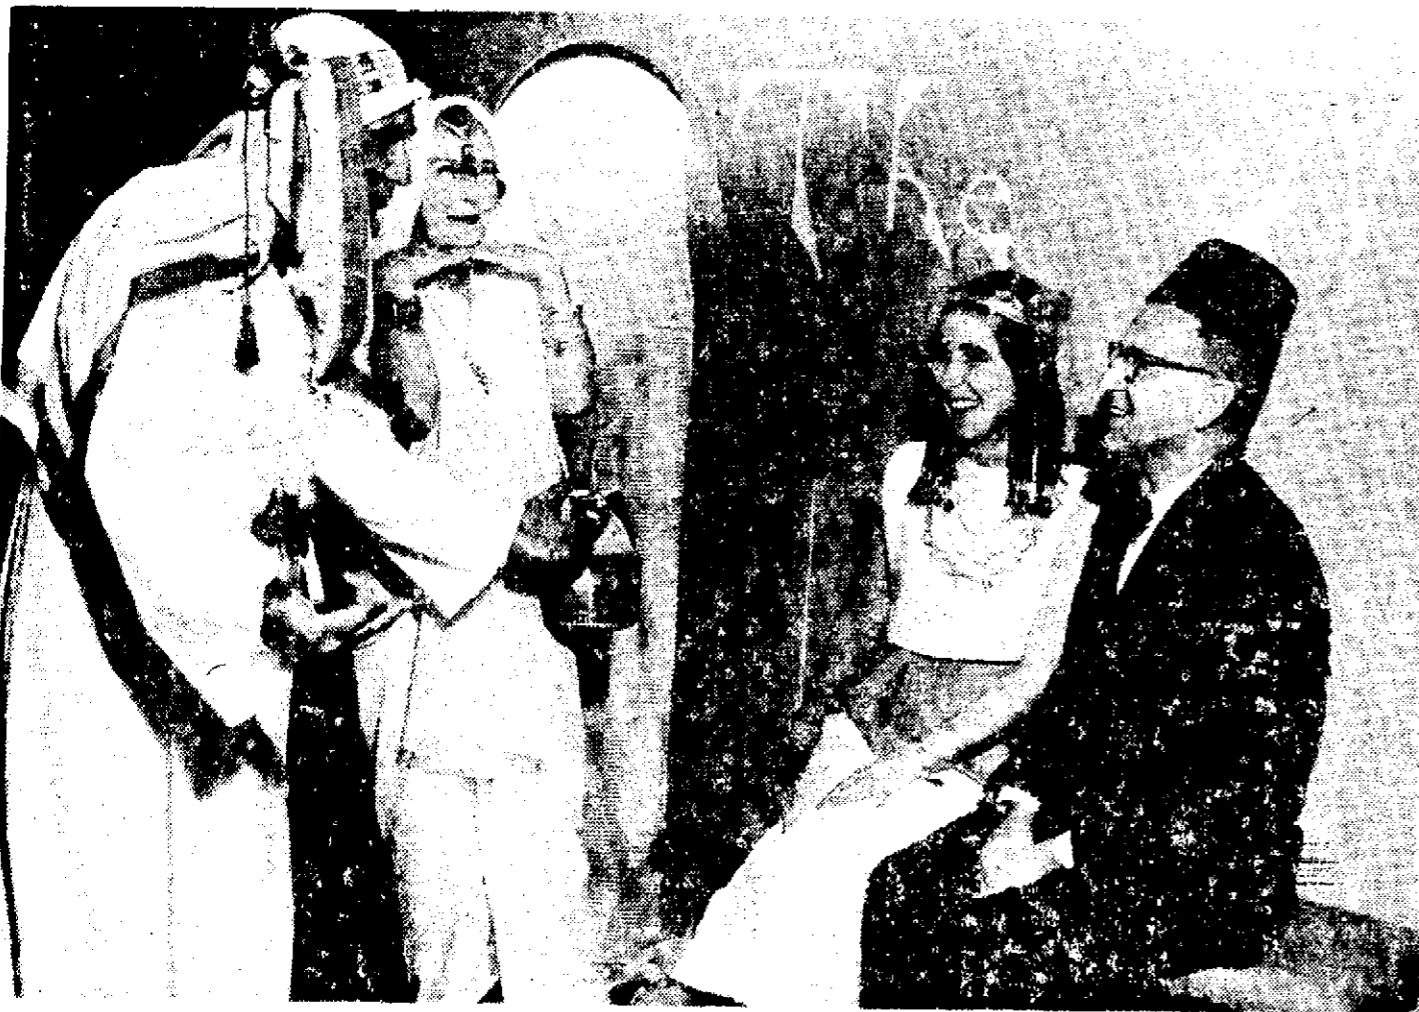

The romance and glamor of the days of Cleopatra and Mark Antony were brought back in all their splendor Saturday evening at Riverview Country Club. The club was transformed into "Riverview on the Nile" for the occasion.

Members and guests shed their inhibitions, and donned the flowing garb of the times. The Cleopatras grew long, long eyelashes, with the aid of spirit gum, and jangled with the ornate jewelry of the era. Antonys were fetching in their Roman robes. They danced attendance on their lovely ladies, many of whom bore a marked resemblance to latter-day Cleopatra, Elizabeth Taylor.

The social hour began at 6:30 p.m. A 7:30 p.m. dinner preceded the evening of dancing.

The Setting above has all the flavor of the days of Cleopatra and Mark Antony, complete with palm-waving slave girl, Mrs. Arthur Kuehn. Playing the leading roles in the scene are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Davis. At left, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Smith, Mrs. Richard Allen and Kenneth Benson comment on each others remarkable resemblance to characters out of a history book. Party guests took great pains to create authentic costumes, even to the forehead jewel worn by Mrs. Smith. At right, Mrs. Richard Baker and Leonard Pasek stand outside the club, ready to make their grand entrance and take their place with all the others who entered the spirit of the party. The couple was honored at a reception at Appleton American Legion Clubhouse. After a honeymoon to northern Wisconsin they will live at 1710 Brighton Beach Road.

Poached Eggs

Some cooks find that adding a teaspoon of vinegar to the water in which eggs are being poached helps to keep the egg whites from spreading unduly. Another protest against spreading is to use extremely fresh eggs!

The Rev. Lloyd Huenink officiated at the double ring rite. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wegener, route 3, New London. Matron of honor was the bride's aunt, Mrs. Mayford Menger, Marion. The bride's sister, Miss Lucy Menger, her cousin, Miss Marcia Ferg, and a cousin of the bridegroom, Miss Karen Spiegelburg, Weyauwega, served as bridesmaids. Miss Connie Menger, a sister of the bride, and Miss Debra Menger, a cousin, were junior bridesmaids.

Presbyterial Meeting Set At Green Bay

A workshop of all guild officers will be held at the Fall District Presbyterial Meeting Oct. 11 at Grace Presbyterian Church, Green Bay. Speaker will be Miss Lilian D. Anthony, Women's representative of the North Central Area for the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Miss Anthony works with women and young people in interpreting the world mission of the church. She has taught in Egypt and served as group leader with operation Crossroads Africa in Nairobi, Kenya. She also visited mission fields in East Asia for the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

Fred Wegener attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Dennis Menger, Lee Pochman and a cousin of the bride, John Buchholz, Weyauwega. Timothy Bergen, Scandinavia, was junior attendant. Ushering duties were shared by Wesley Menger, Oshkosh, an uncle of the bride, and Louis Spiegelburg, the bridegroom's uncle.

A reception was held at the church and a dance at Bear Lake Resort. The couple was graduated from Little Wolf High School, Manawa. The bride was employed at Advance Industries, Inc., Appleton. Manawa Pump and Well Supply Co. Mr. and Mrs. Wegener will reside at Bear Lake.

Ammonia, Detergent Clean Stains

Q: My daughter spattered some mercurchrome on two rubber tiles on our kitchen floor. How can these stains be removed?

A: Try sponging with a warm liquid detergent, adding a few drops of ammonia; then rinse with clear water and wipe dry. Or sponge with a cotton pad saturated with alcohol, not allowing to remain on the tile more than two to three minutes; rinse with clear water and wipe dry.

Q: I want to finish off our basement with paneled walls on furring strips. How are the furring strips attached to the concrete?

A: Many different types of masonry fasteners, including masonry nails, are available at hardware stores. Or an epoxy adhesive can be used to fasten the strips to the concrete.

Repainting Home

Q: We want to repaint our home, but a lot of the nails in the siding have rusted at the heads. How can we prevent their rusting through the new paint?

A: For the best possible results, countersink the nailheads slightly. Then touch up with a rust-inhibitive paint or shellac. Cover with putty, smoothing down to the siding surface. Then paint to match the rest of the house when repainting.

Q: We built a patio of colored concrete "stones" in the spring. We found it hard to keep clean during the summer. Is there any kind of treatment we can give the concrete surface to make it soil-resistant?

A: Yes. Apply a colorless, silicone-based water repellent, available at masonry supplies and large paint stores; follow label instructions for use carefully. The coating acts as a moisture-proof surface, so that rain or water from a garden hose carries dirt away quickly.

Removing Squeak

Q: We have inlaid linoleum on our kitchen floor. But the wood floor under the linoleum squeaks badly. How can we get rid of the squeaks?

A: I assume the underside of the kitchen floor can be reached from the basement, or a crawl space. The squeaking may be due to the boards not resting solidly on the beams. Have someone walk across the squeaky places; drive narrow wedges at these points between the subflooring and beams to close the gap.

Q: I want to make screens for our cellar windows so I can leave them open during the winter. I've finished one, but the screening isn't really tight and smooth. How can I prevent the slight bulging?

A: Cut the screening to the required length, then tack it every three inches to the top of the frame. Work on a horizontal surface at a convenient height (workbench top). Then nail a strip of wood, same depth as the screen frame but slightly longer than width, about one-half inch from the bottom of the frame. Roll the screening from the frame top down over the wood strip, nailing a second strip of wood over the first, to temporarily anchor the mesh. Insert wood wedges, one on each side, between frame and wood strip, and tap in firmly. Tack the screening across the bottom of the frame, and along the sides. Trim screening and fasten molding in place.

Q: I have a large vase on the floor, usually kept filled with flowers. In renewing the water in this, water was spilled on the floor and left unnoticed; now there are stains on the floor. How can I remove these? The floor is shellacked and waxed.

A: Usually, water spots on a shellac finish clear up as the water dries out. Wax may be retarding the moisture evaporation. Remove the wax with a wax-remover made by a nationally known manufacturer, following label directions carefully. Then wipe the stains with a clean cloth slightly dampened with alcohol. Then apply a thin coat of shellac, greatly thinned with alcohol. (Copyright 1962)

Delegates to Badger State Give Program

LITTLE CHUTE — Delegates to Badger Girls State and Badger Boys State were speakers at a meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary Thursday.

Members were informed that Mrs. Ed Spierings was named department sergeant-at-arms at a fall conference at Green Bay Wednesday. Local delegates attending the 4-district meeting were Mrs. Paul Vanden Heuvel, Mrs. Paul Dercks, Mrs. William Winius, Mrs. Reginald Hermesen, Mrs. LaVerne DeBruin and Mrs. Spierings.

Mrs. Hermesen, chairman of community service projects, reported the five recent teen dances successful, and another series of dances is planned.

Mrs. Cornelius Van Bockel, membership chairman, reported on the membership drive and Mrs. Vanden Heuvel announced plans for a 6:30 p.m. guest night and pot-luck dinner for the October session. Mrs. Jesse Bevers served as refreshment chairman.

Meetings Held By Bridge Clubs

HORTONVILLE — Mrs. Paul Kreul was hostess when the Double Deck Bridge club met. Mrs. Lloyd Nickel and Mrs. James O'Hern were holders of high scores. Mrs. Wilbur Hoier, Mrs. Nickel and Mrs. Floy Olk were guests of the club. Mrs. William Morrissey will have the next meeting Oct. 9.

Mrs. Edward Warning, Mrs. Lilly Schwebbs and Mrs. Will Doherty won prizes when Mrs. Will Stake entertained the Jolly 8 Schafskopf club. The club will meet in two weeks.

Mrs. Victor Schmidt entertained the Victory Bridge Club when Mrs. Walter Lueck, Mrs. John Steffen and Mrs. Harris Hauke were prize winners. Mrs. Hauke, Mrs. Bertha Winters and Mrs. Norma Ziehm were guests. Mrs. Harris Hauk will be hostess Oct. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Rusch and son Jerry of Iron Mountain, Mich., and Mrs. Margaret Grill of Tucson, Ariz. visited at the Edwin Gitter home.

Fashion in Coats

A fashion-wise woman looks for more value in a winter coat, unless she has a closetful, than in any other wardrobe item. And rightly so!

The purchase represents a sizeable investment. A mistaken choice can seldom be written off lightly. You have to wear your mistake day in and out, coming and going. Horrible thought! Chances of error becomes less likely when selections meet this test:

Does the silhouette enhance your figure? Preserving the status quo is not good enough. The lines of a coat should improve your own. Remember, too, that the bulk and pattern of fabrics also influence your proportions.

Is the color flattering? Not if it deadens your skin, nor if it emphasizes a too rosy or shallow tone.

Is the style adaptable to your needs and wardrobe? Lightly fitted coats in neutral shades are generally wearable. In the neutral category, count black and the new dark browns, charcoal grays, taupe, deep greens and off whites.

What of durability? Gratifying fabrics, sound workmanship and trend-setting features.

Among trend-setters include

Student From Kenya Compares Wisconsin and Native Country

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — "Napenda Kushi-da." "I like it in America," are the winning words and literal translation of Jedidah Gitkutu's greeting in her native tongue Kikuyu.

That was the way a summer afternoon interview closed with the daughter of Stephen Gitkutu, member of Kenya's largest native tribe of the Kikuyu. It was evident in her warm smile that she liked it here. She had come nearly half way around the world from Kiambu, a farm village eight miles to the north of Nairobi, Kenya's capital city, to study physical education at Oshkosh State College.

It was obvious that she felt at home in the Winnebago land agricultural area but she found the humidity here oppressive and quite different from Kenya's dry heat, 110 degree south of the equator.

On her father's farm, atop the fertile plateau area drained by the Thika River, they raise coffee, cattle and pyrethrum. This last product is a flower from which a potent insecticide is extracted and has brought economic stability through the years. Her father has planted walter trees in the past few years and from their bark a dye is obtained for use in the tanning of leather.

Speaks Three Languages

Language was no barrier for Jedidah (her friends call her Judy.) She speaks, reads and writes her native tongue, Kikuyu; Swahili, the language spoken throughout Kenya, and English. Reading and writing English came naturally. She had studied the language six years in school but she confessed shyly, "It is quite different here, the English, the accent is so strong. However, I have the feeling now that I can understand what is said and express myself."

And express herself she did, courageously, about the weather. "I love the winters here but the humidity in summer makes me feel very uncomfortable. Last winter I had a dream come true. I had read about snow, heard about snow and seen it in the movies but the first snow fall I was so much excited. I could not believe it was snow about which I had read all my life—even when I saw it with my own eyes."

In the mind of Jedidah, there are not so many differences between customs and culture in Kenya and Wisconsin. Now a British Colony, Kenya is the land of 6.5 million Africans, 66,000 Europeans, and is due to get its Uhuru (independence) next year. After receiving her degree in physical education, Jedidah will return to Kenya and seek a position as educational officer. The duties of this office are to organize and supervise curriculum for physical fitness programs sponsored by the government.

Tuition Scholarship

Europeans previously held such positions in government but Jedidah points out that with independence coming natives are filling offices of responsibility in increasing numbers.

Jedidah left her father's farm, her five brothers and three sisters (she is child number four) to fly to Oshkosh State College last summer. Oshkosh State College was included on the list of ten American colleges where she applied for admission and it offered a four year tuition scholarship. She provides money for her board and room and her government furnished the transportation to this country.

Educated in a Presbyterian Mission School since she was five was temporarily blinded by the years of age, she completed four sun and did not see the Westphal years primary, four years intermediate, and four years of high school in her village. One year of study was also taken at a government college in Machakos, the right of way.

There are some differences in the educational systems, she evaluates, "there are few elective subjects at high school level. Promotion to various levels are made only after rigid examinations on subject matter. Everyone must read, write and speak Swahili and English. Our schools are open to everyone, this has been true for the last few years; but tuition is extremely high. Natives are now teaching in elementary grades almost entirely but secondary schools have mainly European teachers."

Excels in Sports

A good athlete, she loves all sports and participates skillfully, her instructors say, in tennis, volleyball, soccer and swimming. She has played golf at home and badminton but since living here she has learned to "love swimming most of all." Kenya has sent many contestants to the Olympic games in years past and they are now going to compete in increasing numbers. The soft ball we know is called "rounder ball" in her country and basketball is called "net ball."

What has she enjoyed most here?

"The kindness and understanding of everyone has been the greatest single thrill," Jedidah insists. She likes TV and movies (TV will be showing in her country by the time she returns home). I like American music and am a good listener. In my spare time I keep busy—that is the only cure for homesickness, to keep busy."

In Swahili, then "Napenda Kushi-da," Judy, and please translate this into Swahili for us, "We are happy that you came."

$500 Damage Caused In Two-Car Crash

NEW LONDON — An estimated $500 damage was caused in a two-car crash at the intersection of U. S. 45 and State 54 at 7:40 a.m. Saturday.

Cars involved in the head-on crash were driven by William Van Ellen, 45, 117 Garfield St., Kaukauna, traveling north on U. S. 45 and Walter F. Westphal, 62, route 1, Bear Creek, traveling south.

Van Ellen told city police he was temporarily blinded by the years of age, she completed four sun and did not see the Westphal years primary, four years intermediate, and four years of high school in her village. One year of study was also taken at a government college in Machakos, the right of way.

Stop Color Disappointment

Why are colors sometimes disappointing in a room — although they look so beautiful together in samples? Why do paint chips, fabric yardages and floor covering swatches seem to make promises they don't keep? The reason very often is because the two or three colors called the color scheme aren't alone in the room, and are by no means seen in clear-cut combination as they are in samples. Other colors separate them and compete with them and change their effect.

Wood colors are nearly always present in the room, in furniture if not in bare floor and woodwork. Painted woodwork can also be in an unrelated color, and fireplace stone or brick and rows of books and objects on shelves may bring in sizeable areas of extra colors. The eye sees them all, colors the color schemer forgets to count as well as those intended for scheming. All contribute to the total effect. Next time samples are tried together, try the extra colors with them. The combination of all the colors that will be in the room may indicate that some of the key scheme colors should be brighter, deeper or should cover more area.

Mrs. L. U.: "Now that the children are older, I'd like to replace our well-worn dining furniture. We've been offered an antique dining table that has been in the family a long time, and would like to have it, but the problem is chairs. Suitable reproductions of antiques seem to come with tables, and we really don't want antique chairs even if I could find enough of them in the right style that are sturdy enough. We need eight. Should I look for someone who makes chairs in antique styles and doesn't charge too much, or what do you suggest?"

Although dining furniture is logically made and shown in groupings, most of it is intended to be sold to fit the room and the need. The store may prefer to order chairs for you rather than to separate them from a table on display, but it might be necessary to order some of a total of eight anyway, and ordering gives you a choice of seat covers.

Mrs. W. D. S.: "A small hall in our new home leads from the living room to two bedrooms. Should the hall wall be painted the gold of the living room walls, or white because white will be used in the color schemes of both bedrooms?"

Much depends on how plainly the hall is seen from the living room. If it's in full view, the gold would probably be the better choice. If it isn't, use white, and another reason for using white would be if white is also used in the living room.

Luck Isn't Enough

"There was no way to know," South grumbled as he scored 100 points on the wrong side of the pad. "If the diamonds had broken in some civilized fashion I'd have been a hero."

South was wrong; it takes more than luck to make a hero.

East won the first trick with the king of trumps and returned.

a trump. South then had 11 easy tricks — five trumps, one ruff in dummy, two hearts, and three diamonds.

Clearly, South had to set up a heart or a diamond as his twelfth trick. Which red suit was he to tackle first?

The diamonds looked like a cinch, so South started out confidently with dummy's ace and king of diamonds. West discarded a club on the second round and it became clear that the diamonds would never come in.

Switches Too Late

South switched to hearts, but it was too late. He could take the top hearts and ruff a heart but then there was only one entry back to dummy (the ace of trumps). South needed two entries — one for another ruff and the other to cash the last heart.

Now go back to the third trick and see how a hero plays the hand. South must start the hearts before touching the diamonds. He cashes the top hearts, discovering that both opponents follow to two rounds of hearts.

The contract is now assured. South ruffs a heart, gets to dummy with a diamond, and ruffs another heart. He gets back to dummy with another diamond and cashes the last heart.

What if the hearts fail to break? The bad news will show up on the first or second round of hearts. South can then switch to diamonds and can set up a diamond if the suit breaks no worse than 4-2.

The point is that South can play for both red suits if he starts the hearts; he can play for only one if he starts the diamonds.

SEAMS TO ME

By Patricia Scott

Too little emphasis is put on pressing garments while they are being made. Women zip through a project, using fine sewing techniques, but without bothering to press, and then wonder why their work looks seedy. The pressing of each individual detail and section before it's joined to another is absolutely necessary.

Also, the way you press is important. A light touch is needed, and a good steam iron with dial control for various fabrics is a must. There are ways to press various details that make a difference. Too illustrated here are just a few.

Figure 1: When you press a seam open, I'll bet you immediately open the seam and forge ahead. How often have you ended up with a slightly folded seam line on the right side, or one that just doesn't look as though it has been pressed? With many fabrics, it's difficult to open a seam and press it perfectly because the material is often too springy. Try pressing the seam while it's still closed, as shown. In other words, just press over the unopened seam so the stitching becomes imbedded in the fabric.

Can Go On

Figure 2 Now, you can go on as usual. Open the seam and carefully press. You'll find it much easier when you've first pressed it closed. If you still have a little trouble keeping the seam allowances spread apart, use the point of your iron down the entire seam, first, and then go over it again and press it flat.

Figure 3: Use a steam iron to shrink out extra fullness from a sleeve cap. If you don't, you'll have a shirred cap; or if you don't steam it out properly, you'll have little tucks and creases along the cap.

Place the sleeve cap over a tailor's ham or sleeve board. With the point of the iron facing towards the body of the sleeve, as shown, lightly place tip of iron on the gathering stitches. Don't press down, just glide over it again and again until the fullness gradually disappears. By the way, don't expect this to happen if the fabric is wash-and-wear. The resin finish in such fabric will make it impossible to shrink.

Press Velvet

Figure 4: A velvet needle board is invaluable when pressing velvet, corduroy and other pile and deep napped fabrics. They're a little expensive, but well worth the price, and they last indefinitely.

Bolshoi Ballet Star Hopes For Dance Created for Her

BY JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — She's the star of the Bolshoi Ballet, and audiences go wild over her. Her private life makes her just as happy. Married to a talented young composer for five years, she can't imagine what could make them quarrel.

What's there left for her to wish for? Maya Plisetskaya fluttered her hands and replied promptly through an interpreter: "She wants to dance 'Giselle,' considered the Hamlet of the ballet."

And she wants something new, something that's never been performed before, created for her. Undoubtedly the first will happen in time, and why can't her husband, Rodion Shchedrin, bring about the second?

"My husband can write excellent music, but I cannot find a libretto."

Husband Was Withdrawn

She smiled toward the far corner of the room where her husband was sitting shy and withdrawn. At one point he refused a photographer's request to pose with his wife at the piano. Later he suddenly announced he would do it, and proceeded to clown amiably through the proceeding.

She explained their happy relationship. "If he were a partner, for instance, there would always be something — such as, he didn't hold me up properly. This way — he composes and I dance — we complement each other."

Together Most of Time

They're together most of the time. In Russia he's with her in the theater or at their home outside Moscow. Here in New York, where the ballet company is appearing before starting a cross-country tour, the couple can be found most late afternoons sitting unnoticed in their hotel bar, sharing a beer.

But if the ballerina were to need more company, she has plenty of family around.

Her two brothers are dancers in the company, and her uncle is the famous choreographer and ballet master Asaf Messerer. She comes from a well known theatrical family and her mother, a motion picture actress, is still active in Moscow.

A Regal Beauty

Maya Plisetskaya, who's been dancing since she was 9, dazzles audiences with regal beauty, incredible grace and dramatic intensity. But away from the stage she has a placid, well-scrubbed look that bears out her reputation for being one of the most even-tempered in the business.

The other day she wore a tailored dark blue suit. A wristwatch was her only ornament. Her long reddish-blond hair was caught back by a ribbon, and on her literally shining face there was only lipstick. Although she's in her mid-30s and reportedly very witty in her native language, she looked for all the world like a good-natured young girl who might find the big city a little fast for her.

Then Plisetskaya the great artist began to talk: "After a highly emotional performance I don't come out whole. A piece of me stays on the stage forever. I lose a part of myself each time."

Before a ballet she goes through the whole performance in her head while she's resting in bed. Then — "After an important performance I always have insomnia. Again and again I see the ballet in my head and I can't sleep until it works itself out of my system."

She said she has found American audiences very perceptive and sensitive.

And little girls studying ballet and tongue-tied outside her dressing room. She went in and rehearsed with two worn pink slippers for them. Their delight was particulate, and no words got said by anyone. But none was shy moppets standing wide-eyed.

If you are looking for a crusade, Ann Landers, please consider the medical profession. Instead of covering up for each other they should be encouraged to help one another. Some physicians are sicker than their patients. — In The Know

Dear In The Know: "Covering Up" for colleagues is found in every walk of life, and I'm sure the medical profession is no exception. But physicians do help each other and their families in countless ways. I know a number of physicians whose dedication to all humanity is very nearly saint-like.

The engagement of Miss Rita Mae Van Handel to Richard G. Heitpas has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney

Miss Van Handel

Van Handel, route 4, Appleton. Mr. Heitpas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Heitpas, 212 E. Coolidge Ave.

Miss Van Handel was graduated from Kimberly High School and is employed in the pharmacy at St. Elizabeth Hospital. Her fiancé, was graduated from Appleton High School and is employed at Appleton Specialty Co.

The couple plans an April 20 wedding.

Two years later, after a series of similar experiences, the president of the local medical society came to our home and told my husband to "please retire" because he was unquestionably a drug addict.

always unfair and particularly so in this case. To attack an entire profession in such a ruthless manner is completely out of line. Your own bitter experience has produced a dangerous blind spot.

DEAR ANN: A girl I worked with was a close friend. She had been dating (and I'm sure living with) an executive of this firm. When the romance first started she told me a lot about him, where they went, what he said and so on. Right hand up, Ann, I never breathed a word to a soul. She was transferred to another department two weeks ago. Now when I see her in the corridors she doesn't speak to me. When we meet in the elevator she turns her head. The executive is cool to me, also, which is embarrassing because I must take his dictation.

How shall I handle this situation? — Harrisburg

Dear Harrisburg: When friends turn on the ice for no reason — there's a reason. Apparently this girl had more confidence in what someone told her than she has in your integrity.

Since you did not "breathe a word" why be on the defensive? He who excuses himself accuses himself.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Redundant: I know one thing you can do that Clem can't — be a mother.

And when you have a little family to care for you'll be happy to have him pitching in. Frankly, I think you have nothing to complain about. Clem sounds like a gem.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to M.D.'s wife — "Your husband should see a colleague" was good. But I can promise you she won't take it. I know about these things because I, too, am an M.D.'s wife.

M.D.'s stick together like no group you ever saw or heard of. I learned the hard way what a physician's wife can expect from another M.D.

My husband fell unconscious on the kitchen floor after taking a pain killer on top of several cans of beer. He had combined the two before, but never in such quantities.

This pain killer has an opium base and when taken along with an alcoholic beverage it can put you right out of this world.

I called an M.D. who came at once and took my husband to the hospital and pumped his stomach. I asked the physician if my husband could be called a drug addict. He gave me a blistering look and didn't even answer.

Two years later, after a series of similar experiences, the president of the local medical society came to our home and told my husband to "please retire" because he was unquestionably a drug addict.

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

PRINTED FOLDERS AT WEDDING!

Dear Louise: We attended a wedding last week in another city. In the racks at the back of the pews were attractively designed folders for everyone's convenience. The printing on the inside was headed: The Marriage Service of Sarah Ann X and Joseph Y, giving the date, the hour and the name of the church. The folder contained the order of service such as organ recital, vocal solos, processional, invocation, Sacrament of Holy Communion, the benediction, etc. It also included the names of the organist, soloist and clergyman. At the bottom was a list of those in the bridal party. This is something new to us and I wonder if you would give your opinion.

R. M. O., Fort Wayne, Ind.
Louise Davis Answers:

I am in favor of it. Many people who may be strangers to the bride's or bridegroom's family and those coming to a wedding from out of town are enlightened by the program and the other information on the folder while waiting for the processional. The folder is dignified as well as informative and it becomes a memento of the wedding. This practice is comparatively new, but is becoming popular. I have an idea that it will become quite universal before long.

Pay Bill Failure Shows Stagnancy

BY SYLVIA PORTER

For the 18th consecutive year the Congress of the United States has considered and shelved legislation to require employers to pay women the same rates as men for identical or comparable work.

The Equal Pay Act of 1962 got further than any previous effort "to prohibit discrimination on account of sex in the payment of wages," though for the first time in history an equal pay bill actually was passed by one of the Houses of Congress: the date was July 25, the place, the floor of the House of Representatives. Admittedly, the House passed the bill in a frivolous mood, amended it so that it would have permitted employers to cut the pay of men to equalize the pay of women! But at least H.R. 11677 reached a Senate subcommittee before getting the usual treatment — sudden death.

So the great United States, leading republic and democracy of the world, remains among the backward nations in its attitude toward women in the labor marketplace, not even recognizing on a national level the justice of equal pay for men and women doing work of equal type and value.

There are 24 million women in the U.S. work force today, one-third of all workers, and before this decade ends, the female work force will be at the 30 million mark. Women have penetrated just about every occupational group, ranging from the most demanding scientific work to the least demanding service work. The average age of women workers today is 40 against an average age of 26 in grandmother's day and more than half of all women workers are married. Women constitute one-third of all college graduates, one-third of all who hold master's degrees as well as one-third of the labor force.

Yet, only 22 of our states have laws requiring equal pay for comparable work, many of these state laws are of dubious effectiveness and Congress has once again seen to it that there is no federal equal pay law. As a result, the discrimination on pay scales because of sex continues painfully obvious.

One-third of 1,900 companies surveyed by the National Office Management Assn. last year frankly reported a double-standard pay scale for male and female office workers. In one Utah study by the Young Women's Christian Assn., the hiring rate for women inspectors is $138 an hour, for men, $148 an hour and the differential rises to 34 cents as they move up the experience ladder — even though, as Miss Ruth Thomson of the YWCA told a House subcommittee, "they are required and expected to do exactly the same job under the same conditions."

Another survey of bank tellers' salaries in 1960 disclosed that women tellers with under five years of experience typically average $5 to $15 a week less than men in the same group — and in a bank, a teller is a teller, regardless of sex. Among college graduates, the differences in average salaries for men and women, when compared by occupation and type of degree, range from $290 to $1,560 a year, all in favor of men. In fact, the gap widens as education levels rise because of the barriers to promotion of women.

Overwhelming Proof

The evidence of discrimination is overwhelming and no one denies it. In her testimony before the House subcommittee, Mrs. Gladys A. Tillet, a U.S. representative to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, submitted data that should make any American, man or woman, blush, for we're behind even some of the most underdeveloped lands on writing this principle into law. Japan put the equal pay for equal work principle into its constitution in 1946. Burma did it in its constitution in 1947, India in 1949, Indonesia in 1950, Vietnam in 1952, Thailand in 1956.

The explanations for our persistent failure to recognize the validity of this principle are a hodge-podge of pocketbook, prejudice, tradition and fear. Many employers are openly hostile to the action because they fear their payrolls would be hiked overnight if women's wages were the same as men's for identical work. The prejudices and traditions need no comment: you know them.

The YWCA's Miss Thomson summed it up superbly when she said to the House subcommittee: "Is this because we want to say to the world that we hold women's work to be less valuable than that of men's? This is hardly conceivable. I prefer to believe that it merely signifies that we have just not yet caught up with ourselves." We certainly have not.

State Artists Have Show at Lawrence

Leo and Annaleise Steppat Work With Welded Steel, Wall Hangings

Wisconsin artists Leo and Annaleise Steppat will be featured in the galleries of the Worcester Art Center on Lawrence College campus during October. The husband-and-wife show, a combination of welded steel sculpture and hooked and woven wall hangings, opened Sunday.

Steppat is a professor of art and art education at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. A native of Vienna, as is his wife, he came to this country in 1940. Before joining the Wisconsin faculty he held teaching posts at American University, Indiana University and the University of Mississippi.

An important figure in contemporary sculpture circles, Steppat has a long list of state, regional, and national shows to his credit. His works are owned by the Whitney Museum of Modern Art, the Smithsonian Institute, the National Museum in Mexico City, and numerous private collectors.

Couple Rescued After Light Craft Capsizes

FREMONT — Mr. and Mrs. James Matthey, Weyauwega, were rescued from the Wolf River, north of Fremont, after their lightweight boat overturned Sunday morning.

The Mattheys were fishing on the Wolf and decided to return home. As Matthey was turning the boat, Mrs. Matthey slid in the direction of the turn, causing the craft to ship water and overturn.

A shoreline resident, Arthur Schmidt, saw the accident and called his son-in-law, Lester Koepf. Koepf and his son, Glenn, went out in another boat and pulled the Mattheys, both wearing life preservers, from the river.

Inside Labor Government Officials Brush Off Protests

BY VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON, D. C. — With a don't-bother-us attitude, high U.S. State Dept. and Dept. of Agriculture officials have for months now brushed off protests against foreign ships alternately carrying vital supplies to Cuba and Communist China and then picking up profitable U.S. government cargo in our Gulf ports.

These protests have come from American shippers and seafaring unions. They are angry men. They see no reason for the ship merchants of allegedly friendly nations to cut into American jobs and much-needed business while servicing the Sino-Soviet bloc at the same time.

Riesel

This anger was written into formal documents dispatched to Secretaries Dean Rusk and Orville Freeman. Perhaps these cabinet members are not aware of the realities of their aides to the evidence presented by the American Maritime Assn. and Paul Hall's Seafarers' International Union.

The documents are now before me, along with the official replies from the two Departments. They disclose that on March 21, 1962, the American Maritime Assn. informed Secretary Freeman that American foreign aid agricultural products were being carried by three ships. These were chosen as typical of scores of others.

Transportation Services Division, Agricultural Stabilization Service, U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

"These three vessels," wrote Hudtloff on March 28, 1962, to Ray Murdock of the American Maritime Assn., "were approved by this office for the carriage of Public Law 480, Title I grain to United Arab Republic, Tunisia and Karachi respectively."

"However, we have no information respecting their performance before and after the above voyage... but this office does not exercise jurisdiction over the terms of charter parties covering employment of foreign-flag vessels."

American shippers and seamen want to know why there is no inquiry. And why there is no information on the activity of the foreign ships which carry our giveaway aid foodstuffs while U.S. vessels and able-bodied U.S. seafarers are idle. Why, it is being asked, were not our allies, such as Ayub Khan's Pakistan and Tunisia urged not to charter ships which also carry enemy cargo? How do we know whether the very same supplies going to Communist China are not transhipped to such official enemy nations as North Korea and North Viet Nam.

Frustration now blended with anger and the American Maritime Assn. turned to Dean Rusk. On June 21, 1962, the group, through its legislative director, Ray Murdock, asked the Secretary of State:

Writes Rusk

"... I would greatly appreciate your courtesy if you would inform me whether or not it is the policy of your department either to approve or ignore the fact that government-generated aid cargo is being used to subsidize commerce between communist nations which are boycotted by our government."

A month later, during the height of the Soviet build-up of Cuba, Assistant Secretary of State G. Griffith Johnson replied:

In this connection the Dept. of State, after consultation with agencies most concerned with aid cargo movements, does not consider that any meaningful facilitation by the U.S. Government to communist trade can be involved in the carriage by such foreign flag vessels of U.S. Government-generated cargoes.

"This matter is, of course, being watched and should developments indicate that such facilitation takes place, the Dept. will explore possible steps to take."

We just happen to believe that the Sino-Soviet bloc is facilitated when foreign ship owners know they can rent their vessels to the overburdened Soviet transport system without worrying about our retaliating.

Tests Don't Measure All Capabilities of a Person

BY LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.
Tests are not all they're cracked up to be.
Selection on the basis tests may eliminate some of our best future leaders not only from top rank colleges but from jobs in industry.
I grant that high school seniors making low grades on certain tests are a poorer risk for success in college than students making high grades. Nevertheless some of those with lower scores would succeed in college.
When a college admits a group of students with scores indicating that one out of three will not succeed, the college knows it is taking a calculated risk. However, it may be well worthwhile if even one of those becomes a leader in his field.

Important in Industry
Test-taking may become too important in industry, also. The man with experience and maturity may lack this skill and lose out to a youngster. Yet test taking may not be a skill required for the job.

ing test scores but with promising qualities that defy scientific measurement.
John E. Sawyer, president of Williams College, describes such students as "individuals with a flair, a forte, a strength of character that would enrich the population and the college—the individual of whom one would say 'There is going to be an interesting person.'"

Doesn't Measure Everything
The college will study the academic achievement of such students for 10 years. Their records will be compared with those of students admitted on the usual grounds of academic achievement—based on tests.

An entrance examination based on tests fails to measure these important factors:

Drive and will to succeed.
Ability to organize knowledge.
Skill in listening. (A college student gains 75 per cent of his new knowledge through listening.)
Critical thinking required in such subjects as philosophy.
Habit of thinking or manner in which the student learns.

Grades Are Partial Rating
In my own study of students who scored high on entrance tests and failed to make correspondingly high grades in college, I have found that neither high school grades nor college entrance tests measure the way in which these students learn.

Whether the fault was memorizing rather than learning, a too-general approach to study, or lack of sound reading and listening procedures, these students failed college work because of a deficiency not measured by the tests.

It is hoped that the study at Williams College not only will identify characteristics by which students with low test scores succeed in college but also will lead the way to salvaging a great number of men and women in industry.

Average Patient Cost $34.98 Per Day in General Hospitals

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
I've recently been reading some financial reports on hospitals. The American Hospital Association finds that it costs $34.98 a day to take care of a patient in our general hospitals. The cost is less in mental, tuberculosis and similar long-term hospitals. Almost $35 a day is certainly an important figure, since 25 million Americans went to hospitals last year. About one in seven, that is.

The cost rose by $2.75 compared to the year before, and from everything I can see, and hear, the cost will continue to rise. The cost of everything a hospital uses: labor, which is the largest item, sheets, food, supplies, repairs and so on, continues to increase.

Further, new kinds of equipment keep coming along, and if a hospital is to be modern and give its patients the best known treatment, it is a necessary expense.

Increased research costs have been mentioned as another factor, plus the not-inconsiderable cost of training employees. Despite the value of the services of student nurses, it still costs a substantial amount to train them, and other personnel.

Partly Subsidized
Therefore I think it behooves us to know these things. We don't enjoy paying over $30 a day to be in the hospital, but if that's what it costs, there is no point in hopelessly wishing that some good fairy would make it less. Wishful thinking is no help at all.

You may have noticed that I just mentioned "paying over $30 a day," where a few paragraphs earlier I quoted $34.98.

I did this on purpose—because the average patient pays $32.25, or $2.73 less than the amount it costs to provide the care. The difference is made up from gifts or grants to hospitals. The average patient still isn't paying what it costs to provide hospital care.

I stress average, because in some localities charity patients are cared for, supposedly at public expense, but the cities of counties involved don't always pay what it really costs.

The hospital thus is forced to make up the difference from gifts, or if this is not enough, is forced to charge patients somewhat more than their rightfully should be charged for their own care. This, it seems to me, is most clearly wrong.

Vary With Localities
The amounts I've cited are average daily costs. The first day in the hospital, with its extra laboratory tests and so on, can run about twice the average cost in many cases. Later on it is lower, bringing us back to the average.

Costs vary with localities, so don't try to insist that your hospital ought to be exactly average. If your bill is lower, somebody else's has to be higher.

Whether we pay directly, or through Blue Cross, or through some other plan, good hospital care is not cheap. But I don't know where in the world it equals the quality of that in the U.S. and Canada.

Young Business Man: YOUR CARRIER

Post-Crescent newscarrier David Hannemann, 212 N. Meade St., Appleton, is another of several young boys who are part of a family relay in the newspaper business. His brother, Dennis, also had a route in years past. Dennis' route, which he has served for three years, takes in Hannemann the 200 blocks of E. North, Harris and Franklin streets, the even-numbered homes of the 200 block of E. College Ave., and the 100 through 400 blocks of N. Durkee St.

Dennis is a junior at Appleton Senior High School where he augments his scholastic duties as a stagehand for the many civic and school events taking place through the year at the high school. He attends Trinity Lutheran Church and maintains a steady attendance record at Sunday School.

The young business man spends a portion of his hard-earned profits on his sports activities which consist of baseball, basketball, bowling and skating. Further interests include chess, playing bridge and going hunting. The rest of Dennis' earnings are applied to a very healthy savings account which is earmarked for a college education.

East German Boat Sinks in Baltic Sea

KIEL, Germany (AP)—An East German naval patrol boat sank in the Baltic Sunday after colliding with the 1,864-ton British freighter Abbotsford. Kiel port authorities reported.

They said the boat's seven-man crew was rescued by three other East German patrol vessels. The Abbotsford continued toward Kiel, apparently undamaged.

Constitutional Law Backs Mississippi

WASHINGTON — There is the Supreme Court of the United nothing in the Constitution of the States has never been willing to United States or in the laws pass-by which the Fourteenth Amend- ment was allegedly ratified. Yet one of the ten original amendments — known as "The Bill of Rights" and duly ratified in 1791 — does say that no person shall be "deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law."

Gov. Barnett nevertheless has been threatened with jail — without "due process of law."

Last Saturday Atty Gen Rob- ert F. Kennedy, in a telephoned heard by the full membership of sation's convention at San Francisco said that the distin- guished lawyers of Mississippi had not spoken out in the battle over integration. Apparently Mr. Ken- nedy didn't note the speech made in the Senate just two days be- fore by Sen. John C. Stennis of Mississippi, one of the ablest law- yers in the country. He has sat the fairest-minded men in the Senate claim today in this field. He told of the origin of the case is derived from a decision of the of James Meredith, the Negro ap- pellant, as a private suit against States in 1954 which gave no le- gal reason but only "sociological" and that the lower courts have considered as an argument no right to decide such a ques- tion. But only one member of the permitted "separate but equal" highest court — Justice Black — facilities in deal with segrega- tion.

14th Amendment The 1954 decision cited the Four- teenth Amendment as the basis of his ruling, but the amend- ment's State University and how a recently during the time the Supreme Court members were on strict Court ruled that the Mis- sissippi college authorities were justified in denying admission to oral argument by then attorneys Meredith. Denied a Hearing But the main point of criti- cism made by Sen Stennis was that the state of Mississippi was being denied a hearing by the Supreme Court of the United of States. The Constitution specifical- ly provides that the Supreme Court must hear as a matter of that on three separate occasions when "original jurisdiction" all cases the Senate had "soundly defeated involving a conflict between a proposals to give the attorney gen- eral the very authority to exer- cise the powers which he has as- sumed." "If the day has come when not only a citizen of Mississippi, but also the governor of that great state, can be dragged across a state line by federal marshals or troops and subjected to the dic- tates of appellate judges appoint- ed to their cushy jobs for life, then judicial tyranny is a reality and not a fiction."

There is serious doubt from a legal standpoint whether a pres- ident has the right to send troops, into a state under the circum- stances existing in Mississippi. This correspondent made the same criticism five years ago when President Eisenhower order- ed federal troops to Little Rock, Ark.

Whatever one's individual feel- ings may be about segregation or desegregation, it seems only fair to express agreement with Sen Stennis that the whole case should be heard on its merits by the Supreme Court. It seems fair, also to suggest that the fraudu- lent method of "ratifying" the whole series of court ended up for trial after 94 years of rulings and new executive orders of tragic silence by the Supreme mobilizing federal military forces Court of the United States are based today — should be op-

SAVINGS AND LOAN WITHDRAWAL NOTICE IS RAZZLE-DAZZLE TALK

DEAR CY: Can you please give me the low-down on savings and loan companies? I have been told de- posits may be entered one day and withdrawn the next, if I wish. My daughter's lawyer tells her there is a definite 30-day notice required. In other words, with my money in a savings and loan, I would have to wait 30 days, and then have difficulty getting my money. Is this true?

MRS. STEINER: DEAR MRS. STEINER: A savings institution that did not pay on demand would be most unusual and non-competitive these days. Practically all have the cus- tomary 30-day notice in writing, printed somewhere. They do not enforce it! Razzle dazzle, regard- ing a competitor's required notice, is sometimes used in competitive back-of-the-hand talks to secure savers.

DEAR CY: Automation bounced me out of my job, and I don't expect to find the same kind of job again. ## KHS Football To be Played on Neutral Fields

KAUKAUNA — No home foot- ball games will be played in the city this year due to construction on the new athletic field, accord- ing to Norbert Phinerson, Kau- kauna utility manager. Future games will be played on either the Little Chute or Kim- berly field. The utility is financ- ing the construction of the new athletic field and was told by the landscape firm sodding the field to keep off the turf until the sod can take root. Cold nights have slowed the knitting process leaving the sod loose. If a game were played, a player might incur a severe in- jury as a result of uncertain foot- ing, according to the landscaper. Currently the field is being wa- tered about 24 hours per day, given an extra growing season, the gridiron will develop into one of the finest in the state. Home games remaining on the Kaukauna schedule are Kimberly, Two Rivers and Shawano.

Play Well-Plotted 'Merry, Merry' Would Have Been Better Title for 'Mary, Mary'

BY JAY JOSLYN Post-Crescent Staff Writer "Mary, Mary," as far as the far-from-capacity audience at Appleton High School auditorium was concerned Saturday night should be spelled "Merry, Merry." Jean Kerr's Broadway hit sport- ing the suave attraction of Lee Bowman as the star turned out to be a most enjoyable evening and another success for the Variety Theater and its sponsor the Ap- pleton Gallery of Arts. On the Great White Way, the Kerr family is tied closely to the theater with Jean a successful playwright and her husband, Wal- ter, a top drama critic. However, to most of the rest of the nation, Jean is best known as the author of very funny books. "Mary, Mary" is a happy mar- riage of the two activities. The plot was apparently laid by a Plym- theat with a point of view and its out- lines are flamboyant, sparkling and—most of all—sharp. The road company cast was of a quality well suited to the ma- terial at hand. One of the special qualities of "Mary, Mary," is the sensible, nept bungler—a really enjoyable even sensitive, way in which the performance Hollywood character—usually a caricature on Broadway—is pre- sented. The title role was in the capa- ble hands of Patricia Smith, a fa- miliar of day-time television view- ers. Although Miss Smith's tongue was forked and honed to a fine edge and she grew wonderful- ly in the role, her portrayal wasn't really her own. What she pro- duced was a competent imperson- ation of Barbara Bel Geddes, which is good too. At the vortex of the whirlwind of the plot was an egg-head apparently laid by a Plym- theat with a point of view and its out- lines are flamboyant, sparkling and—most of all—sharp. ## Two Men With Masks Hold Up 'Gas' Station

Obtain Almost $100 From Attendant Near Green Bay

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Two men wearing Halloween-type costumes took almost $100 during an armed robbery at a village of Howard service station early Sunday morning. The men held up Van Camp's Zephyr Station at about 2:45 a.m. Sunday, taking $98.70 from the attendant, David Powell, 17.

Powell was alone in the all-night station when the two men walked in, wearing face masks and loose-fitting black clothing, described by Powell as either a loose black dress or some type of Halloween costume.

One of the men carried a revolver believed to have been either a .32 or .45 caliber automatic. Powell said one of the men, about 5 feet, 7 inches tall, helped him place the money in a white bag or pillow case.

Said Little
Both men said little during the hold-up, according to Powell, and when they did talk they attempted to disguise their voices. The taller man also ripped the telephone wire.

After ordering Powell into a back room, and warning him to remain there, the two men left the station. Powell said he never saw a car and indicated the men may have walked behind a nearby implement company.

This morning, Brown County Sheriff William Swanson said a sheet of black plastic material and some black plastic tape was found on a path near the implement company Swanson said he planned to have Powell look at the items to determine if they were used as part of the disguise.

After the men left the station, Powell ran outside and flagged down a passing car, driven by Russell Lalonde. Lalonde notified the sheriff's department from a pay phone at a neighboring motel.

Powell was unable to furnish a complete description of the men. The shorter member of the pair was about 5 feet, five inches tall, 140 pounds with dark hair and possibly wearing glasses. The other man, described as being taller, weighed about 160 pounds.

First Freight Moved Today as North Western Strike Is Ended

The first North Western freight train in more than a month was scheduled to arrive in Appleton at 12:15 p.m. today, marking the end of a major shipping crisis in the Fox Cities.

This morning, Brown County Sheriff William Swanson said a sheet of black plastic material and some black plastic tape was found on a path near the implement company Swanson said he planned to have Powell look at the items to determine if they were used as part of the disguise.

After the men left the station, Powell ran outside and flagged down a passing car, driven by Russell Lalonde. Lalonde notified the sheriff's department from a pay phone at a neighboring motel.

Powell was unable to furnish a complete description of the men. The shorter member of the pair was about 5 feet, five inches tall, 140 pounds with dark hair and possibly wearing glasses. The other man, described as being taller, weighed about 160 pounds.

Youth Run Over By Tractor Dies In Green Bay

STURGEON BAY — A 13-year-old Sturgeon Bay boy died at a Green Bay hospital Sunday afternoon from head injuries suffered earlier in the day when run over by a tractor.

Conrad Metoxen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Metoxen, route 2, Sturgeon Bay, was injured critically when run over by a tractor at the corner of Utah Street and Cove Road about 11:25 a.m.

The accident occurred when the boy fell from a homemade tractor being driven by his brother-in-law, Floyd Williams, 27, 233 Juniper St.

According to authorities, a car owned by John and Gerald Metoxen went into the ditch. Mr. and Mrs. Metoxen, Conrad and a sister were riding on the tractor along with Williams to the car. The accident occurred as the tractor rounded a curve.

The boy was rushed to St. Vincent hospital where he died about 4 p.m. He was a sixth grade student at West Side School.

Planners Take No Action on Armory

Commission Waits to See What Appleton Will Do About Giving Site for National Guard Building

Because the city is engaged in land negotiations to purchase land adjacent to the industrial park, the city plan commission took no action today on a proposal to do away with the site for a new National Guard armory.

It was disclosed that city officials were scheduled to meet this afternoon with representatives of I. Bahcall, Inc. to determine what price the firm would want for about 25 of 34.6 acres it recently offered for sale to the city.

National guard officials have requested a 27-acre site in the city's industrial park, and the Bahcall property is adjacent to that area. In addition to the land, the city would have to provide the site with sewer and water, as requested by the state.

The proposed armory and maintenance center would cost a half million dollars. It would serve close to 1,000 national guardsmen in the Fox Cities region, having an annual payroll of about $400,000. The common council is expected to make a decision Wednesday night on whether to provide an armory site for the state.

Today's meeting was highlighted by an opinion from Acting Public Works Director Henry Crowe, who said he thought the proposed armory should be located in the industrial park. He said if a big industry were ever to locate on the 27-acre tract being sought by the state, the city would have a major problem in providing adequate facilities to handle sewage.

"Eventually, the sewers would be overloaded in the park if all big industries located there," Crowe said. In reply to a question, Crowe said the discovery was made after the land had been assembled as an industrial development area.

George Johnson said he felt the

Troubadour Sings To Prisoner, Ends Up in Jail

A traveling troubadour is in the Outagamie County jail today after attempting to ply his trade on several county jail prisoners at the Outagamie County courthouse this morning.

Sheriff Lt. Jack Frenzl arrested the guitar-carrying youth as he sat atop his automobile this morning, singing songs to an audience of several prisoners in the fourth floor jail. The youth's car was parked in the courthouse parking lot.

The youth said he was killing time waiting for his friend to come out of the jail, where he had been placed when he failed to pay a traffic fine.

Frenzl said charges may be filed against the youth after an investigation by the sheriff's department.

New Insurance Firm Created

Homeco Will Begin Operation Early in 1963

The incorporation of a new Appleton company, the Homeco Insurance Co., has been approved by the Wisconsin Insurance Department. The firm which will be part of the Home Mutuals Group, is expected to begin its operations in January, 1963.

Formation of the new company was prompted by the desire of the Home Mutuals Group to broaden its writings in the fire, allied lines and casualty field, and to introduce modern electronic data and mass marketing methods, according to Gordon A. Bulz, one of the incorporators of the Homeco Company.

The new company will have 200,000 shares of stock when the sale is approved by the Securities Commission, and will be sold at $4 per share, with a total capital and surplus of $800,000.

Seven Injured In Accidents Over Weekend

Two-Car Crash On State 116 Hurts Three

OSHKOSH — Seven persons were injured in Winnebago County and Oshkosh traffic accidents Sunday and today, three of them in a two-car crash at State 116 and County Trunk M near Winnebago at 4:18 p.m. Sunday.

Jake M. Jaekels, 67, Main Street, Winnebago, received a dislocated left hip when his car and one driven by Joseph A. Hubli, 54, Lomira, collided at that intersection. Hubli received a head cut and bruises and his wife Flora, received chest injuries.

According to county police, Jaekels was going east on State 116 and was attempting to make a left turn onto County Trunk M. Hubli was traveling west on 116. Miss Mary M. Cassidy, route 1, Berlin, received a whiplash neck injury at 8:05 a.m. today when her car was hit from behind on U.S. 41, south of County Trunk Z. Driver of the other car was Amos Briggs, 73, Wellington, Ill.

Miss Cassidy told county police she had stopped for a school bus which was picking up school children.

Three were injured at 3:45 a.m. Sunday when a car driven by Thomas Utecht, 18, 126 Broad St., Oshkosh, hit a parked truck in the 200 block of Ceape Avenue. Utecht suffered a cut left eye.

Gary Boreen, 19, 846 Wright St., received a dislocated left leg. Hans Stopinski, 770 High Ave., had an injured right leg. Both were passengers in the car.

Utecht was fined $20 this morning by Winnebago County Judge James V. Sitter for driving without a license.

Neenah Man Admits Indecent Exposure

OSHKOSH — A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for James Lawver, 27, 180 Plummer Ave., Neenah, who pleaded guilty this morning of indecent exposure.

Judge James V. Sitter ordered Lawver held in the county jail without bond to await the pre-sentence investigation report Oct. 18.

Lawver admitted exposing himself to a 17-year-old Appleton girl in the Valley Fair shopping center parking lot late Saturday afternoon.

New Books

Author Gives View Of Siege of Leningrad

"The Siege of Leningrad" by Leon Gouge, one of the new books on display at the Appleton Public Library this week, describes a battle that has long been known as one of the great tests of human courage in World War II.

The siege also has long been pointed to as a prime example of the Russian people's will to fight for their Communist government through incredible hardships which in this case cost the city 1,000,000 lives.

Histories of the battle are scarce, however, and the appearance of this important document may change certain judgments about the siege.

The book starts with a brief history of the city, then shows the hysteria and general confusion brought about by the Nazi attack in the summer of 1941. Spy scares, food shortages, shelling by German guns, rationing, then the slow starvation of the great city, followed in rapid order.

Out of Fear It develops as it did in many other parts of western Russia that some of the people actually welcomed the idea of Nazi occupation rather than to continue the repressive measures of the Communist Party. When stories of German atrocities reached Leningrad, however, resistance stiffened.

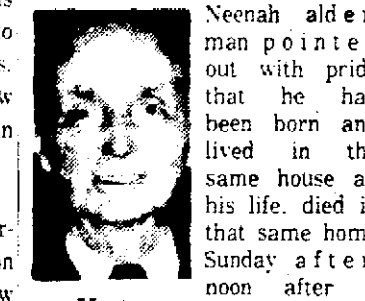

Possibly out of fear more than patriotism, the author contends, the fight went on until January of 1944 when the Germans withdrew.

The book is specific about the hardships of the people, if not about many of the political factors behind the scenes. Perhaps nowhere in current reading can be found such organically accurate descriptions of starvation, overwork and constant fear. Diaries, letters and personal accounts by the people themselves increase the authenticity.

A current struggle is detailed in "The Odd Day" by DeWitt Copp. Ever since the violent artillery battles on Quemoy, Matsu and other areas of Nationalist China's

Ex-Alderman In Neenah Dies At Age of 90

NEENAH — Robert M. Martens, 90, of 300 W. Doty Ave., who often in his 22 years as a Neenah alderman pointed out with pride that he had been born and lived in the same house all his life, died in that same house Sunday afternoon after a lengthy illness.

Martens He has served as alderman from Neenah's Second Ward from 1924 to 1946.

He was born Sept. 23, 1872 in Neenah and reached another of his goals — the age of 90 — only a week ago. He was feted at that time by neighbors. He was a member of First Methodist Church, Elisha Kent Kane Lodge No. 61, F. and A.M., and Neenah Fraternal Order of Eagles No. 1099.

Survivors are the widow and several nieces and nephews. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Westgor Funeral Home with the Rev. Guy R. Nelson officiating. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after 4 p.m. Tuesday and Masonic rites will be conducted there at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Menasha Student Found Dead at NU Sorority House

MENASHA — Kay Halverson, 21, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. I. Halverson, 235 Bullard Court, was found dead today in her sorority house at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., according to the Associated Press.

She was found by a roommate at the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, where Miss Halverson, a senior majoring in speech, lived. The Cook County coroner's office said she apparently died of an overdose of sleeping pills as two empty bottles, that were labeled as having contained barbiturates, were found near the body.

Miss Halverson was a 1959 graduate of Menasha High School where she had been prominent in music, forensics and journalistic activities.

Survivors are the parents and a sister. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Red Feather Workers Given Solicitor Kits

President Tells How 1961 Goal Was Reached

NEENAH — Distribution of industrial employee solicitor kits at a kick-off breakfast at the Boys' Brigade building this morning opened the annual Neenah - Menasha "Heart of Paperland" Community Chest drive this morning. Cost of the breakfast was borne by the four Twin City Banks.

James P. Buchanan, Community Chest president, outlined to the volunteer workers how the budget of $149,500 to support 10 local Red Feather youth, health and welfare agencies was reached. This year's goal represents an increase of $8,600 or about 6 percent above that raised last year. The budget is tight and one reason for the increase is that three of the agencies that had been understaffed have had to add additional help. These are the Boys' Brigade which received $2,100 less than its request, the Apostolate whose budget was cut $1,200 and the "WCA."

Those agencies and the others received some increases but not as much as they had requested. The Children's Service Society received an increase because of increased work in this community.

Review Agency Budgets

Buchanan explained that each agency presents a detailed budget to the budget committee of the Community Chest which reviews these requests and makes recommendations to the 25-member board of directors of the Community Chest. The board met with several of the agencies before setting a final budget.

The directors had two alternatives, Buchanan said. One was arbitrarily to cut these budgets and the other was to throw out a challenge to the community to meet the needs of these local agencies. They decided unanimously on the latter step.

Urban Krippene, chairman of the industrial group solicitation, said in many firms, letters were being sent to each employee to advise them of the value of the Community Chest in Neenah-Menasha.

Paul Dodge, general chairman of this year's fund drive, urged the solicitors to "not leave the job to George to do because it won't get done. You can't delegate this job to anyone else."

Urges Payroll Plan

Last year's drive chairman, Konrad Tuchscherer, urged the promotion of the payroll deduction plan and the 20-minutes-a-month plan. In some cities, employees are asked to give 30 minutes worth of pay each month and in others, such as Milwaukee, they are requested to give a full hour's pay each month.

This is a case of the fortunate helping the unfortunate, he stressed.

Lee Heroman, Community Chest president, pointed out how the

20 New Leaders Join Over 100 Veterans on Brigade Staff

NEENAH — Twenty new leadership group; Lavern Gossers have been signed up for this year for the Boys' Brigade in addition to more than 100 veteran leaders who are continuing their volunteer work.

Still needed are an art instructor for Wednesday nights, a bugle instructor for Saturday afternoons, an advanced model building leader for Monday nights and Rifle Club leaders for Tuesday or Wednesday nights.

Anyone interested in becoming a leader should contact the Boys' Brigade office, Jack Casper, coordinator, announced today.

The new leaders and their assignments by days are: Monday night — Lester Herzfeldt and Russell Meartz, workshop; Stanley Bye, railroad club; Howard Anunson, physical fitness, and David Franz and Gale Crist, fly tying; Tuesday night — Ralph Miller, ninth grade group, and Richard Turner, physical fitness; Wednesday night, Cliff Burton.

Neenah Requests Donors for Visit Of Bloodmobile

NEENAH — The call for blood donors for the two-day visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile Thursday and Friday opened this morning as Mrs. Robert Tuttruff, calling chairman, and her committee began their work. Mrs. Lloyd Beach is assistant chairman.

The blood bank will be set up Thursday morning in the Fellowship Hall of First Presbyterian Church of Neenah as Neenah Chapter, American Red Cross, sponsors the October bloodmobile visit.

Hours for the blood bank will be from noon to 5:30 p.m. both Thursday and Friday.

Quota for the two-day visit is 276 pints of blood. Doctors who will be in attendance include R. H. Quade, John Haselov, George Arndt, Given Gustafson, H. C. Beglinger, John Nobel, V. G. Springer, Fred Smith, J. P. Canavan and Fred Jensen.

Harvest Moon Festival Set

Pumpkin Carving Contest Highlights Merchants' Program

MENASHA — Harvest Moon Festival days are scheduled for Friday and Saturday in Menasha under sponsorship of the Menasha Business Associates. Light posts will be decorated with corn stalks and dried flower for the event.

A top feature will be a pumpkin carving contest for youngsters up to 15 years of age. The MBA members will have 1,000 pumpkins available for carving. They will be distributed at the city square, starting at 4 p.m. Thursday but children must be accompanied by their parents when they pick up the pumpkins for carving.

Pumpkin Carving

After the pumpkins are carved, entries are to be made at the Clothes Shop anytime on Friday. Entries will be displayed and judged on the street Friday night. Awards will include a $5 first prize, $3 for second, $2 for third plus five $1 winners.

Apple cider and doughnuts will be served free Friday and Saturday at all stores participating in the event.

Menasha Business Associates also will pay 50 cents per pound for the largest pumpkin brought in and registered before 5 p.m. It must be weighed in and registered at the Menasha Superette on Main Street in downtown Menasha.

All Menasha stores will feature special bargain buys during the festival. They are all brimming over with new fall merchandise for every member of the family.

Committee members are Wesley Saeker, Donald Rippl, Paul Heipas, K. C. Kimball, Hugh Gear Jr., Jack Williams and Marguerite VanGorp.

Commission Doesn't Okay Northwood Plat

Attorney, Planner Clash Over Providing Facilities for Area

The city planner and an attorney representing property owners had strong differences of opinion today, and the plan commission failed to give approval to the proposed Northwood subdivision plot.

Developers are anxious to get plat approval so that a new Kroger store can be constructed in the area of U.S. 41 and Meade Street. Other developments also are planned.

The plan commission today, as in the past, showed reluctance to give plat approval because it appears a serious storm sewer problem exists in the area.

Not Denying

City Planner Walter Rasmussen said the commission was not denying the plat but felt more time was needed to plan city underground facilities which would serve the proposed subdivision.

"There is no end to the storm water problem out there," Rasmussen said.

Atty. Everett A. Stecker took the position that considerable time had already been consumed in planning the subdivision. He said further delay would be responsible for "the entire project going up in smoke." He appeared on behalf of some of the property owners who are anxious to sell.

At one point, Stecker focused his attention from the subject matter to a recent report which Rasmussen compiled concerning annexations made by the city during the past 11 years. Rasmussen had said too much money in city facilities was being spent on the outlying areas as compared to the city's inner and intermediate areas.

Stecker said the people residing in the outlying region were paying "greater taxes than those residing closer in." He also contended that these same city residents are paying the majority of the expense for the city's upkeep.

'Was Ridiculous'

"These people (who live on the perimeter) are more than contributing their share when it comes to tax money," Stecker said, "I think the statement made by the planner was ridiculous."

Rasmussen was quick to again disagree with Stecker and advised

Temperatures Stay Crisp In Wisconsin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crisp autumn temperatures were the rule in Wisconsin Sunday as high readings ranged from 73 at Green Bay to 57 at La Crosse and Eau Claire.

Minimum temperatures at night varied from 34 in the Superior area to 36 at Milwaukee and Beloit-Rockford.

Rainfall spread eastward during the afternoon and evening, with La Crosse receiving .28 of an inch. Other amounts were Eau Claire .25; Lone Rock .20; Madison .16; Beloit-Rockford .13; Racine .04, and Milwaukee .02.

A heavy fog developed in some eastern areas during the night and figured in the death of a man whose car struck a freight train at a crossing near Valders in Manitowoc County. The fog continued at midmorning today around Manitowoc, Green Bay and Marinette.

Thermal, Calif., had Sunday's national high of 102 while Craig, Colo., registered this morning's low of 21.

the latter to "make your pitch to the board of public works." The two disagreed on several other matters, and Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stillings injected her opinion that the planner had figures to prove his statements.

No Time

Referring to the need for further engineering studies to be made of the proposed subdivision area, Rasmussen told Stecker: "It takes time to do these things and you won't give us time."

However, agreement was reached that the request for plat approval would be taken up again at the commission's Oct. 15 meeting.

Stecker said the delay was causing a financial hardship on his clients and hoped for approval in the near future. He pointed out that when the land was taken into the city, the assessments were increased considerably.

Sale of School

In other action the commission concurred with a proposal to negotiate the sale of Whispering Pines School with the Appleton Coated Paper Co. but requested Rasmussen to prepare a report on the city's future plans in that area.

The commission also discussed briefly the need for changing the city's zoning ordinance which Rasmussen said was outmoded and based on "1928 zoning procedures." It was decided to hold a series of special weekly meetings to discuss changes.

Mrs. Stillings said it was "a crime" that the present ordinance tolerated some of the things it does. She cited as an example a situation in her ward. "I have a dentist putting his office in his home and it makes me very upset," Mrs. Stillings said.

Police Check Two Break-ins Over Weekend

Appleton police are investigating weekend break-ins at the United Community Services headquarters, 306 N. Oneida St. Saturday and at the Greyhound Bus Terminal, 210 N. Oneida St., sometime Sunday night.

Police said about $12 was taken from a drawer at the community services headquarters. It was pried open. Police said there was no evidence of forced entry to the office. Roland Todd, executive director of the services, said over $10,000 in checks was deposited Friday in an Appleton bank.

Burglars forced a rear door in the bus terminal and pried open a cash drawer but did not take anything. A crowbar which was used to open the rear door was found by police near the drawer.

Tipsy Drivers Plead Guilty

Hortonville and Tigerton Men Pay $100, $200

Wilbert J. Buck, 52, route 2, Tigerton, appeared today in Outagamie County Court, Branch 2, pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs, and had his driver's license revoked for one year for driving while intoxicated.

Buck was arrested by state police on State 45, two miles south of New London at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, when he was seen driving erratically.

He was tested on the drunkometer and recorded .26. A reading of .15 is evidence of intoxication.

Frederick Krueger, 31, route 1, Hortonville, pleaded guilty of drunken driving when he appeared before Municipal Judge John Quinn last week. Krueger was fined $100 and paid costs of $36.

Krueger was arrested by Hortonville police on East Main Street after hitting a parked car. He tested .22 on the drunkometer.

Kaukauna Driver Injures Head, Knee In Two-Car Accident

KAUKAUNA — Marvin Van Deraa, 26, of 203 Crooks Ave., Kaukauna, received bruises to the head and knee and was fined $50 for each of two traffic violations as a result of an accident about 2 a.m. Sunday.

Kaukauna police said Van Deraa was traveling north on Crooks Avenue and as he rounded a curve, he crossed the center line of the road and struck a car driven by Dr. George Boyd, 54, County Trunk U toward Shawano County.

Sauerlich, whose parents live on Kiel, was sentenced to the reformatory last May to a three-year term for a burglary in Milwaukee County.

Thursday, two inmates walked away from the same camp and municipal justice of the peace, left a string of stolen cars in their wake as they made their way through northwestern Wisconsin. The inmates are still at large. Months on each of the charges.

Fall Meeting Set By District PTA

School Dropout Problem Topic For Conference at Kaukauna

The Eighth District of the Wisconsin Congress of Parents and Teachers will conduct its annual fall conference at the Kaukauna Methodist Church from 8:45 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. Oct. 10, with a program emphasizing the school dropout problem.

The conference theme will be "Educate — For What?" The program will emphasize that part of the National PTA Action Program, which expresses concern over the increasing number of school dropouts.

Panel members will be Walter G. Schmidt, principal of Kaukauna High School; Meyer M. Cohen, Green Bay, member of the state coordinating committee for higher education, and Mrs. L. D. Wright, Green Bay, historian for the Wisconsin Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Persons nominated for election during the morning business session are Mrs. Bernard Lienau, Sturgeon Bay, candidate for second vice president, and Mrs. Lawrence Bittner, Coleman, candidate for treasurer.

Mrs. Olson will install the newly elected officers during the noon luncheon period. Guest speaker at the luncheon will be David Hall, Green Bay.

Conference Worker

Conference planning is under the direction of Mrs. Bernard Henkelmann, Green Bay, Eighth District president. Hosts for the conference are the Park School PTA and the Nicolet School PTA of Kaukauna. Mrs. Marvin Beyer, will be chairman of a workshop on the topic, "Can High School Do It All?"

Registration and luncheon reservations should be made with Mrs. Ray Krueger, 133 Garfield St., Kaukauna.

Unit and council history books will be displayed at the conference, and PTA publications will be available.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Schomisch, co-presidents of the Appleton Area PTA Council, are members of the Eighth District board. Mrs. Marvin Beyer, Kaukauna, is Outagamie County chairman for work of the Governor's Committee.

Governor's Committee

Introduction to the workshops will begin during the morning session with an explanation of the work of the Governor's Committee.

Tormenting Rectal Itch Stopped In Minutes

Science Finds New Healing Substance That Promptly Stops Itching and Pain of Piles

New York, N. Y. (Special) — One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching piles." It is most embarrassing for the victim during the day and especially aggravating at night.

No matter what you've used without results — here's good news. For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to promptly stop the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids — without surgery. Medical science has proved this substance produces a remarkably effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. This improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' duration.

The secret is this new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H®. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters.

LeBaron Leads Dallas To Victory Over Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, given a brilliant ride by jockey-sized quarterback Eddie LeBaron, beat the Los Angeles Rams 27-17 in a National Football League game Sunday.

It was Dallas' first win of the 1962 season—a mark the hapless Rams have yet to attain.

George Halas Calls Packers Great Team

"Nothing else could have produced so many points.

"They were a great team today, we were a poor team," the pro football pioneer summed up cryptically. "That's it, period."

A picture of quiet elation, Vince Lombardi unhesitatingly labeled the Packers' unexpected waltz "our best performance so far.

Both units played extremely well.

"We've played good games before," he added by way of explanation, "but everything seemed to work today. Everything we tried worked."

Lombardi paused to mop perspiration from his brow with a handkerchief, which prompted one scribe to quip, "what did you have to sweat about today?" This elicited a grin, which served as a reply, from the Packer headmaster.

Had he expected such a rout? He was asked. "No, of course not," Vince shot back.

How did he explain it? Well, for one thing, the Bears were hurt a little. "I'm sure that didn't help them any. You can't take people like Bill George and Willie Gaimore out of their lineup and expect the Bears to be 100 per cent."

Ill-Fated Decision

What about the Chicagoans' ill-fated decision to go for it on fourth down in the third quarter? "I don't know what he was thinking," Lombardi replied. "That's his decision, of course. I don't know how he felt at the time."

Speaking of the Bears' injuries, had he been convinced (going into the game) that they were legitimate? "I read all of that stuff in the papers," Vince admitted, "but I never heard anything official."

Had there been any change in strategy to exploit Bill George's absence? "No, we didn't make any changes. We did the same thing we did last week, only we did it better."

In this connection, he observed, "We were running outside better today. We hadn't been running well outside, you know, up until today."

Admitting it had been a performance which did not make for singling out individuals, Lombardi did, however, make specific reference to sophomore Elijah Pitts, and the bruising Jim Taylor. "Pitts had a great day," he said, "and Taylor had another good day."

What about the immediate future of Packer casualties Paul Hornung and Tom Moore? Hornung got a muscle pull on the inside of his leg, but it's not a groin pull," Vince reported, "and Moore hurt his left shoulder. It was the same injury he had in the All-Star game. I don't think it's too serious, however. It's not a bone—it's probably a strain."

Note of Compassion

Did he have any concern about the lopsided score? somebody asked. "I didn't try to do it," Vince said, a note of compassion in his tone. "I felt badly about it but there was nothing we could do about it."

Did he think this performance might work to the Packers' advantage in next week's early season showdown with the Detroit Lions? "I haven't the slightest idea," Lombardi declared. "I don't think it's any advantage or disadvantage. This game was rough enough, as far as I was concerned. It wasn't easy by any stretch of the imagination."

The Packers will be heading in to the Detroit imbroglio with a 3-0 record. Did he think this meant that the Packers are well on their way to another title?

"I don't think anything means anything in this league," was the succinct reply. "All I can say is, that's three we've got under our belts. They can't take those away from us."

No comment—a dejected Bill Wade, who had one of the most dismal afternoons of his 9-year pro handling and brainy quarterbacking figured in all of the Cowboys' scoring. He even held the ball when Sam Baker kicked field goals of 34 and 48 yards.

But Amos Marsh, a fullback who runs like a halfback, contributed a Texas-sized assist with a spectacular display of open-field running for the Cowboys.

In the game's prettiest play, LeBaron guessed that the Ram line was set up to smother a running play. He changed signals audibly and tossed a short pass to Marsh who went 85 yards to score, easily outdistancing the Ram defenders.

Don Perkins Scores

Runs by Marsh of 36 and 18 yards in a drive from the opening kickoff contributed to the Cowboys' first score when Don Perkins went over from the 5-yard line.

LeBaron also tossed a 66-yard pass to Frank Clarke for a Cowboy touchdown.

The Rams' scoring came on a 51-yard field goal by Danny Villanueva, a 16-yard pass from quarterback Zeke Bratkowski to Jim Phillips and a 40-yard pass from rookie Roman Gabriel to Pervis Atkins.

A sparse crowd of 26,997, the lowest in nine years, booed the hometown Rams throughout most of the game. Only the brilliant punting and field goal by Villanueva and Gabriel's touchdown pass brought any lusty cheering.

kick was successful, running the score to 27-0 at halftime.

Returns 13 Yards

The home town forces made their only serious touchdown bid immediately following the second half kickoff. Dan Hurst returned 13 yards to his own 38. Larry Van Lankveld carried for seven and three yards, respectively, and the Dutchmen had their initial first down of the game. Moments later, the Hawks were penalized 15 yards and St. John had another first down on the Xavier 33.

On the next play, Hawk line-man Jim Pegel smeared St. John quarterback Mike Weyenberg for an 8-yard loss and the loser's only serious scoring threat went by the boards.

The winners drove for their final marker late in the same period. The fearsome foursome of Bleuer, Whittinger, Peeters, and Rammer grounded out four first downs, moving the ball to the Dutchman seven. Paul Putzer took it over. Wiesner converted to duplicate last year's 34-0 verdict for Xavier.

The usually potent St. John offense, which had outgained both Kimberly and DePere Pennings in their two previous contests, was held to 48 yards and two first downs — one on a penalty — by the hard-charging Hawks.

But their presence certainly would not have changed the outcome.

The Packers ate up Chicago with a 244-yard ground game and passed just enough to keep the Bears honest. Starr completed 9 of 12 for 154 yards and John Roach had 1 for 1. Boyd Dowler led the receivers with five for 57 yards.

Starr got 100 yards out of the left half spot — to go with full-back Taylor's 126. Hornung ran for 14 in two and Moore followed with 22 in 8, while Pitts got his turning back in a big hurry for 64 yards in 9 trips and then caught two passes for 40 yards.

The defense got its biggest test in the second quarter when the Bears reached the Bay 13 following a 63-yard Bill Wade to Joe Marconi pass. The defense was riled and promptly threw the Bears back 20 yards in two trips, with Willie Davis making two big plays in a row, and Roger LeClerc finally missed a field goal from the 34. That was the closest Chicago came to scoring.

Chicago had only two other "threats." On the last play of the half when Wade and Ronnie Bull worked a 21-yard pass to the Bay 31 — only to have Willie Wood steal and intercept the throw. Then early in the fourth quarter the Bears reached the Packer 28 where they lost the ball on down.

Rough Passing Start

And now for the Packers scoring. Starr, after getting 44 yards out of Taylor and Hornung on the game's first four plays, had a rough passing start. His first throw to Taylor was dropped and his next, to Max McGee, was intercepted by Dave Whit-sell. But Starr proceeded to complete nine out of his next 10 throws.

Oh yes, the scoring! The first TD drive went 66 yards in 10 plays starting on the first play of the second quarter. Taylor and Moore carried on the first six plays for 45 yards and then Starr hit McGee for 15 up the middle to the six. Three plays later, Taylor crashed over right tackle for the TD.

Hornung, though he played but a few minutes, came out with all seven extra points. It was 7-0 at 5:34.

After Le Clerc missed his FG, the Bears went on an 80-yard TD march in seven plays. Moore and Taylor went 11 yards in a try apiece and then Starr threw to Dowler for 7 and Moore added eight when he hurt his shoulder.

Pitts came on but two running plays gained zero and Starr tried a pass. The throw was a sharp shot up the middle to Kramer who juiced Whitsell out of his shoes about the Bear 35. Kramer proceeded down the west sidelines and into the end zone to complete the 54-yard TD play, with Taylor blocking out J. C. Caroline on the 10. It was 14-0 at 13:46.

A Yard Loss

The Bears gambled early in the third period on fourth down on the Packer 43, but the defense hurled Bull for a yard loss on tackles by Jess Whittington and Bill Forester. The Bears moved 43 yards in four plays. Starr threw breazed to a 21-7 National Football League victory over the Minnesota Vikings Sunday.

A crowd of 38,407, in warm, sunny weather, cheered more loudly for the periodic announcements of Los Angeles and San Francisco baseball scores than for the football game they were watching.

The Vikings failed to cash in on a scoring opportunity early in the first quarter when Bill Butler intercepted a Brodie pass at the San Francisco 21. Three tries netted only two yards and Mike Mercer missed a 26-yard field goal attempt.

Set the Pattern

That set the pattern of the game for the hapless Vikings, winless in three starts.

Taking over at their 20, the 49ers marched 80 yards in 11 plays, Kilmer running for 53 on three carries. His last was a 3-yard smash into the end zone.

In the second period, Butler fumbled a punt which Karl Rubke recovered on the Viking 19. Kilmer bucked over from the 2 for the score.

In the third period, Tommy Davis punted from the San Francisco 15 to the Vikings 3. Five plays later Brodie passed to end Clyde Conner 8 yards for the touchdown. Davis kicked all three 49er conversions.

Philadelphia Eagles scored their first National Football League victory of the season Sunday beating Cleveland 35-7 on the passing of quarterback Sonny Jurgensen and a fired up defense that throttled the Browns' vaunted running game.

Although Jurgensen's passes accounted for two touchdowns, a 31-yarder to halfback Tommy McDonald and a 15-yarder to Dick Lucas in the fourth, it was the defense that stood out.

In the first period with the scored 7-7 Cleveland gained possession on the Philadelphia 3 after a fourth down bad pass from center prevented the Eagles from punting. The Browns however, could gain only 2 yards on three running plays and a pass and the Eagles took over.

From this point Cleveland was never in the game as Jurgensen scored on a quarterback sneak from the one to give the Eagles a 14-7 halftime lead. Clarence Peakes banged over from the one making it 21-7 after three quarters and in the fourth Jurgensen hit Lucas for a 15-yard TD whereupon Theron Sapp plunged over from the one.

Bobby Walston booted five conversions.

In going down to their second straight defeat after beating the New York Giants in their season opener, the Browns' pair of dreadnoughts, Jimmy Brown and Tom Wilson, were slowed to a crawl. Brown gained only 12 yards on 31 carries while Wilson netted 9 on 33.

With Brown and Wilson ineffective, Cleveland was forced to the air and quarterback Jim Ninowski had about as much luck as his running teammates. Rushed afternoon by a Philadelphia defense playing for its life with two defeats already chalked against it, he completed only 9 for 60 yards.

On the other side, Jurgensen could have sat in a rocking chair so effective was his protection.

Braves Drop Final Game of Season, 4 to 3

Finish in Fifth Place for Lowest Spot in 10 Years

MILWAUKEE (AP)—"Wait and see in '63."

That slogan was suggested by a loyal Milwaukee fan Sunday after the Braves dropped their final game of the season to the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3.

The 1962 slogan was "Something new in '62."

There was something new for the Braves this year, but most of it wasn't pleasant to recall.

The Braves wound up in fifth place, their worst finish in the past 10 years. They also played to fewer fans than in any of the previous nine years they have been in Milwaukee. Final home attendance for the year was announced at 767,221, with 7,376 persons turning out for the windup.

The Braves appeared to be headed for a 3-0 victory until the Pirates came through with four runs in the eighth to take a lead which held up.

Mathews Homers

Milwaukee had taken the lead on Bob Uecker's two-run homer in the second and Eddie Mathews' four-base blow in the fifth. It was Uecker's first homer and Mathews' 29th, giving him a lifetime total of 399.

Jack Curtis and Denny LeMas-ter each went three innings for the Braves, and although hit hard, kept the Pirates from scoring in the first six innings.

faked a line plunge, drifted back and looped an easy pass to Mitchell who pulled away from the defenders for a 40-yard touchdown.

St. Louis scored late in the third quarter, driving 80 yards. John David Crow swept end for the 6 for the tally.

However, Washington moved ahead 17-7 with a 28-yard field goal by Bobby Khyat and quickly scored again after recovering a fumble on the Cardinal 45. Jim Cunningham punched over from the one.

They say bad things come in threes. But not for the Dallas Texans in the American Football League this year. It's three good things for them.

First Coach Hank Stram has come up with the quarterback he's been looking for the past two seasons in Len Dawson. Also to go with the former Purdue ace's pinpoint passing Dallas continues to get the running from Abner Haynes.

And third Stram's once-que- tionable defense now is rated as the league's best.

Indians Fire Mel McGaha, Seek Durocher

CLEVELAND (AP) — General Manager Gabe Paul was looking for a new field boss for the Cleveland Indians today and said he had "a couple of choices in mind."

I want the best available, Paul said Sunday after announcing that the contract of freshman manager Mel McGaha 36 would not be renewed for 1963.

Paul has approached Leo Durocher, former manager of the Dodgers and Giants in the National League about the Cleveland job. Durocher must decide whether he prefers Los Angeles or another crack at managing.

record at 10-10 and registered his third victory in four decisions with the Dodgers.

"It was the best game I ever pitched in my life," Podres moaned. "Yes, better than even the game (2-0) I pitched against the Yankees in the 1955 World Series." That was the one that brought the Dodgers their first world championship.

"I felt I was in command all the way," the veteran left-hander added. "Just one blankety blank. It was a change up curve, a little bit high and tight."

Manager Walt Alton, trying desperately to hide his disappointment, refused to blame the Dodger collapse on tenseness due to the pressure of the tight pennant race.

Horrible Slump

"I don't know whether they were tense or not," he said. "I didn't see any evidence of it Sunday. I would just blame it on a horrible slump. We're just not hitting worth a darn."

Alton named Sandy Koufax,

Bo Robinson got two of the Raiders scores on an 86 yard kick off return following the Chargers first TD and on a 32 yard pass from Chon Gallegos. Gallegos also hit Dobie Craig with a 32-yard TD pass.

The Giants and Dodgers fought evenly during the regular season each winning nine games of their 18-game series. The Giants, however, won six of the last seven from the Dodgers.

Alton who must have been dying inside, tried bravely to appear calm and unworried about the Dodgers' late September slide.

"Well, at least we can't back into it now," he said. "We've got to win it. The other clubs gave us a lot of help but we couldn't take advantage of it. Now, we've got to help ourselves a little."

"We have no excuses. We've had all the opportunities in the world."

"I would just as soon go into this playoff like we are, in a hitting slump, than if we had scored 15 runs Sunday. I think we're about due to bust out in a rash of base hits and get some runs."

This is the fourth playoff in National League history and the Dodgers have been involved in all of them. They lost to the Cardinals in 1946, lost again to the Giants in 1951 and defeated Milwaukee in 1959.

"This race was much tougher on us than the one in 1959," said Alton who led the Dodgers in the 1959 playoff.

"At that time, we were closing in on the Giants and Braves. We had everything to gain and nothing to lose. We were relaxed. If we lost well, we weren't supposed to win."

It was much different this time. We led most of the way. There is a great deal more pressure on the lead team. You have to keep looking back over your shoulder."

Giants Rally to Tip Pittsburgh, 31 to 27

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Balding Y. A. Tittle outduelled aging Bob Layne with four touchdown passes to earn the New York Giants a 31-27 triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday in a bruising National Football League game.

Tittle, 35-year-old sharpshooter hit on touchdown passes of 11, 58, 27 and 16 yards to tie a club record for a single game held by Chuck Conerly and George Shaw. Don Chandler's 23 yard field goal in the first quarter accounted for the other New York score.

Layne, who set a NFL record for touchdown passes in a career last week, got one to bring his 15-year total to 190.

Trailing 14-3 after the first quarter, Tittle began firing with deadly accuracy for two quick touchdowns in the second quarter — 11 yards to Paul Dudley and a 50 yarder to Alex Webster.

Steelers Lead, 20-17

The Steelers had jumped off to a 20-17 lead in the third period on a 33 yard field goal by Lou Michaels, but Tittle quickly erased the deficit with a 27-yard touchdown toss to Frank Gifford and hit Del Shofner on a 16 yard pass in the final quarter.

The Steelers took the opening kickoff and drove 84 yards in 12 plays for a touchdown. John Henry Johnson and Joe Womack alternated carrying the ball with Womack skirting left end for 7 yards and the touchdown.

Two thrilling kick-off returns of 56 and 57 yards by Brady Keys led to the Steelers next ten points. Layne tossed 28 yards to Bill Mack in the first quarter and Michaels kicked a 41 yard field goal in the second period.

Michaels also kicked a 33 yard field goal in the third quarter.

The Steelers' final score came in the last quarter on a yard plunge by Johnson to cap a 79-yard drive. With a crowd of 40,916 screaming, the Steelers drove to the Giants' 15 with only two minutes left but had a pass intercepted by Erich Barnes in the end zone.

Started Hitting Holes In Last Half, Pitts Says

Jim Taylor Happy Over Yardage as Well as Touchdowns

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — His gleaming white teeth flashing a smile that spoke volumes, sophomore speedster Elijah Pitts happily conceded, "It was sort of unexpected."

Little Philander T. Smith's most noted alumnus, briskly toweling his bronzed shoulders in a corner of the Packer dressing room, was discussing the circumstances which catapulted him into the spotlight against Chicago's surprisingly docile Bears Sunday afternoon following injuries to incumbent left halfback Paul Hornung and his understudy, Tom Moore.

"When I came to the stadium today, I figured I'd only be playing on platoons," Elijah grinned. As it turned out, he held forth at LH the entire second half, amassing 64 yards in nine carries — 26 of them on a dazzling scoring dash.

Although delighted with the opportunity, the modest Little Rock resident wasn't entirely happy with his performance. "I had trouble hitting the holes in the first half," Elijah confessed soberly. "Then, all of a sudden, I was hitting them pretty well."

"Last year I had a lot of trouble, because I was getting to the hole too fast," he explained. Then, he added, "I slowed it down today. And weren't they blocking out there?" Whew!

Pitts credited Fuzzy Thurston with a major assist in his scoring sortie. "It looked like there were two who had a shot at me," Elijah recalled. "The linebacker came up the field on the outside halfback — and that was it."

Elijah's veteran collaborator, Jim Taylor, confessed with a broad grin, "We were a little stronger than I thought we were. Of course, it's easy to get a lot of points when you've got a defense like that."

Taylor's square-cut countenance was wreathed in smiles for another reason. The 123 yards he had amassed, Jim let it be known, were fully as important to him as the three touchdowns he had scored.

"I'm hoping to get off to a fast start (in his annual battle with Cleveland's Jim Brown for the NFL rushing title)," he admitted. "Our linemen are going all out for me. They're giving me 100 per cent all the time."

Pausing for an oblique bow in the direction of Cleveland, the bayou bronco declared, "Competition is a great thing. It's good for both of us."

How did he expect to fare against Detroit? "Detroit has a real tough unit — the best defensive unit in the league," Taylor asserted. "We'll get a real test next week."

Brawny Ray Nitschke whose interception of a third down pass by Rudy Bukich triggered the Packers' second half getaway, shrugged off applause for his contribution. "The ball was right on my fingertips — Bill Quinan tipped it. He was mad too," Ray grinned. "He thought he had it."

Another interceptor, ratlike Herb Adderley, confided his fourth quarter scoring scamper with a wayward Wade aerial had resulted from a gamble — against an old colleague.

"I played on the same high school team with Coia (Angelo) in Philadelphia," and I respect his speed," Herb said. Most of the time I was dropping off, expecting him to run a hitch and go. That one time I gambled. If he'd caught it, he probably would have gone all the way, too."

Another successful "long ball" operative, massive Ron Kramer, said, "I thought I was gone when I got past that outside man. At least I didn't see anybody else. Taylor's block helped a lot."

Kramer, who counted his second touchdown of the season on that 54 yard venture, took pride in the fact, "I liked that last man illustrating the maneuver with an abbreviated version of the twist."

Needless to say, it was a boisterous dressing room. But there was one among them, old pro Jim Ringo, who had a twinge of compassion for the victims.

"It's just like what happened to us in Baltimore last year (45-21)," observed the veteran all-pro center who has undergone a number of like experiences in a 10-year career. "Sitting on the other side of the field, you know how it feels."

champion Yankees 8-4. Minnesota blanked Baltimore 1-0 behind Camilo Pascual's three-hitter. Detroit whipped Kansas City 6-1. Cleveland defeated the Los Angeles Angels twice 4-3 and 6-1, and Washington and Boston split, each taking a 3-1 decision.

"I hit it good," said Mays, of the shot that won it for the Giants. "I don't know if that was my biggest homer ever—or not."

Mays' homer came off Houston starter Dick Farrell (10-20), who had been touched for Ed Bailey's 17th homer in the fourth inning that sent the Giants out to a 1-0 lead. The Colts tied it in the sixth against Billy O'Dell on singles by Roman Mejias, Bob Aspromonte and Jim Pendleton. O'Dell left for a pinch hitter in the seventh and Stu Miller (5-8) received credit for the victory with no hit relief over the final two innings.

Match Serves

The story at Los Angeles was much the same with Cards' starter Curt Simmons and Podres matching serves Simmons (10-10) allowed only five hits, hurling the second straight St. Louis shutout against the Dodgers and extending their scoreless innings string to 21 while keeping them from getting a runner beyond second base. Podres (15-13) had given up only the two hits and hadn't permitted a runner past first base when Oliver connected for the clincher.

In the clubhouse the managers of the playoff participants pulled their respective thoughts together and made these comments:

Al Dark of San Francisco: "I've never seen a club come back like this one—a club that was counted out so much. But this thing isn't over yet."

Walt Alton of Los Angeles: "Well, we can't back into it now. This time we've got to win it ourselves."

That's been the Dodger story in all three previous NL playoffs. The Dodgers lost to St. Louis in 1946, lost to the Giants in 1951 and defeated Milwaukee in 1959 going on to capture the world series.

Meanwhile, the NL's lesser lights pulled down the curtain. The Reds backed the pitching of Tsitouris with home runs by Jerry Lynch and Gordie Coleman to beat the Phillies and Art Mahaffey (19-14). The Pirates rode Groat's eighth inning bases-loaded double to their victory over the Braves and the Cubs turned back the Mets for Bob Buhl (12-14) with the aid of the key eighth inning triple play.

Loses Bid

Mickey Mantle went 2-for-3 for the Yankees, but lost his bid to overtake Pete Runnels of Boston for the AL batting title when Runnels was forced to sit out the Red Sox games with the flu. Runnels wound up at .325 to Mantle's .321.

The White Sox got a pair of home runs from rookie Brian McCall and one by Nellie Fox as Ray Herbert posted his 20th victory. Pascual also got No. 20 pitching the Twins to their victory over the Orioles.

Jim Bunning pitched a four-hitter and Norm Cash hit a three run homer as the Tigers lapped the A's. The Indians took the opener against the Angels on Jerry Kindall's single and won the nightcap with a 12-hit attack. Don Lock homered in the Senators' first game victory, but the Red Sox came back to make it a split as Gary Geiger and Don Gle connected for homers in the second game.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

Yes, and the best way to do this is to teach the enjoyment of a number of different things. The child who has never learned to enjoy anything except food is likely to have poor manners. He will rush into the house and go right for the refrigerator. But the child who has learned to care about the opinions of others, the condition of the house and the things that make us civilized, will first clean his feet, hang up his hat, and wash before gorging himself.

Lesson in English

Words Often Misused: Do not say, "It was a remarkable phenomena." "Phenomenon" is the correct singular form. "Phenomena" is plural.

Often Mispronounced: Syllabic. Pronounce si-lab-ick, accent on second syllable.

Often Misspelled: Candor; "or," and not "er."

Word Study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's Word: Indefinable; incapable of being defined. "She has a will to make the best of what an indefinable charm."
